

HOOVER, MELLON AGREE ON REFUNDS PUBLICITY
BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—There is a good deal more strategy than appears on the surface behind the recent executive order whereby decisions on income tax refunds will be made public.

The first impression to the effect that President Hoover had overruled Secretary Mellon's now given view to the conviction that the president and secretary of the treasury thoroughly understood each other and adopted the plan with the full realization of what would be prevented rather than what was being disclosed.

In other words, the government has really maintained the position of Mr. Mellon to the effect that the returns themselves of large corporations getting refunds will not be revealed. The treasury department will decide just what will be made public.

There is a difference between a "treasury decision" and an income tax refund. In the latter are listed all the facts of which it is contended a competitor might make use, including the amount of profits made, deductions for sales expense, overhead, etc.

But in the former there is embraced only the process of reasoning whereby the treasury comes to the conclusion that an erroneous calculation has been made and a refund is justified. In some cases the entire decision revolves around a method of computing a particular item and while the amount refunded is revealed it is unlikely that a competitor will ever get from a treasury decision much more than a technical discussion of a particular point.

MELLON VS. CONGRESS
The viewpoint of congress, as expressed in a discussion, indicated a desire to go further, namely, to open the entire income tax sheet of the corporation to inspection by the public. Secretary Mellon resisted this vigorously and it was apparent that members of congress were likely to administer a defeat because the treasury was in the unfortunate position of being represented as opposed to all publicity on income tax refunds. The treasury has always sent the amounts of the individual refunds to congress because special appropriations have to be made for the purpose, but it was considered that to make public income tax return refunds and the individual record of the corporation, too, would simply revive the old practice of publicity for all returns.

There is a school of thought in congress which would like to go back to the old system, but it is in the minority. What President Hoover and Mr. Mellon did was to compromise with the opposition by agreeing to make public the logic used by the treasury in arriving at a refund—nothing else. Under the circumstances it is felt in executive quarters that the movement in congress to go further with publicity of income tax returns will have been checked.

HERB AND ANDY AGREE
Far from being in disagreement about it, the president and the secretary saw eye to eye in this matter and adopted a practical expedient to avoid and forestall congressional action. It is understood that the recommendation came from the treasury to the president in the natural course.

Although Secretary Mellon at the outset of his public career was considered unfamiliar with the ways of the politicians in congress, there is evidence that on more than one occasion he has outwitted his opponents. The secretary has shown an inclination frequently to apply the same rule that chief executives have in the past, namely, to make the best working arrangement possible with the legislative bodies. The idea that Mr. Mellon will be less powerful under the Hoover regime than under the Coolidge administration will probably prove groundless as time goes on. For the president and the secretary, while differing at times on matters of policy, have more often been in agreement and this latest episode is evidence of accord rather than discord.

WITCH DOCTOR HELD IN MYSTERY DEATH
Allentown, Pa. — (AP) — Charles T. Belles, self-styled "faith healer," was under arrest Saturday in connection with the mysterious death of Verna Octavia Delp, 21-year-old foster daughter of a Green Pond farmer.

The case has prompted District Attorney Gearhart to decide upon a searching inquiry into the practices of "pow-wow" and "hex" doctors in Lehigh and adjoining counties.

Belles was arrested without formal charge, but it was announced that he would be accused of active participation in the death of Miss Delp, whose body was found last Saturday near the grounds of the East Catawissa Gun club. Poison, the nature of which has not been determined, caused her death.

The young woman, who was the foster daughter of August Derhammer, was a believer in new-waveism and consulted Belles a number of times. Police say she was to have become a mother.

The investigation also revealed, the authorities stated, that Miss Delp had received $500 legacy last fall and that much of this money had gone to pow-wow doctors.

Mr. and Mrs. Derhammer told the authorities that when their foster daughter left home last Friday she informed them that she was going to visit Belles and that she had previously consulted him eight or nine times.

BULLETIN
Mexico City — (AP) — General Calles, chief of the federal forces in the field, notified the government Saturday that he was sending 12 regiments of cavalry, approximately 5,000 men, from Torreon to the states of Guanajuato and Jalisco to fight the "Catholic rebels" there.

BULLETIN
Juarez, Chihuahua — (AP) — Detachments of Mexican rebel soldiers have penetrated the territory south of Torreon in their campaign to rout the federal forces commanded by General P. Elias Calles, said advisers received here Saturday from Jimenez, the revolutionary army base.

(By the Associated Press)
Rebel troops in their counter-offensive against the government were at the gates of Mazatlan on the west coast Saturday and fighting for the possession of the port was imminent. Some fighting between the 2,500 defenders and the 5,000 rebels was reported, but apparently little blood had been shed.

A force of 6,000 federal reinforcements was rushing to the relief of the city, but was not expected before Sunday at the earliest.

Two clashes took place Friday, but in both cases the insurgents were driven off and General Carrillo, Mazatlan's defender, assured the government he would be able to hold out.

Wireless advices from the steamer Margaret Johnson said that the rebels were three or four miles from the city and that everything was quiet.

REBELS MOVE SOUTH
The rebels, who recently evacuated Torreon before the Calles advance, were again proceeding southward and were reported at Bermejillo about 30 miles north of the city.

A rebel advance also was developing on Naco, along the border, the insurgents being reported 30 miles from that town where a federal detachment is strongly entrenched.

Pointing to the three counter attacks being developed, rebel leaders expressed optimism that they would control the country by July.

The rebels have imposed a war tax on Nogales, Sonora, for funds to run the revolution.

The body of General Jesus Aguirre, prominent Vera Cruz rebel leader, who was court-martialed and executed after his capture by the government, arrived in Mexico City Friday.

28 Boy Scouts Seized By Flood

Several of Party Drowned as Others Cling to Debris
After Cloudburst

Lenoir, City, Tenn. — (AP) — A searching party seeking to aid a troop of 28 Boy Scouts whose cottage swept from a bluff on White Creek near Rockwood, Tenn., early Friday telephoned officials here that several of the boys were drowned, but that others could be seen clinging to trees and floating debris in the flooded stream.

The camp is about 70 miles north of here on White creek, normally a small stream. The cloudburst which swelled the creek to dangerous size and swept away the cottage also washed out highway bridges and hampered telephone and telegraphic communications, making it impossible to confirm reports.

Another report which was received at Knoxville was that the town of Coal Creek, Tenn., was "wiped out" by the cloudburst.

CAN GIVE NO AID
Notified that a cloudburst had flooded the boys' bungalow Saturday morning, families and friends hurried from Rockwood to the creek, and arrived in time to see a wall of water sweep the bungalow from its foundations and throw the scouts into the water. The only bridge had swept away, a member of the rescue party said, and fathers of the scouts watched helplessly as their sons floundered in the creek.

Most of the boys were from Rockwood and between 12 and 16 years old.

A taxi driver, Floyd Miller, who happened to drive along the creek road Saturday morning saw the rise of the water and had brought word of the impending disaster to Rockwood. He said three other bungalows and two small churches in a summer camp colony there were swept away.

2 MORE FOUND ALIVE
IN DISASTER AT MINE
Parnassus, Pa. — (AP) — Rescue crews, exploring the explosion wrecked Kinloch mine, Saturday, ceased work when two missing men were found alive and well. The death list will stand at 46, officials of the Valley Camp Coal company announced. Forty-five bodies have been recovered, the body of one victim, Arnold Breeding, is buried in wreckage under water.

The two men reported as missing were found in their boarding houses Kinloch. Four fires broke out in the mine early Saturday, but three were extinguished quickly and the fourth was brought under control.

Mayflower, Presidents'
Yacht, Decommissioned

Washington — (AP) — The presidential yacht Mayflower has carried her last party of distinguished guests down the Potomac.

President Hoover has ordered the historic vessel decommissioned so that her officers and crew may be available for service on new warships. The act also is looked upon as an economy measure, since maintenance of the yacht in commission has been costing the government $300,000 a year.

In laying aside the Mayflower, Mr. Hoover has indicated the discontinuance of a form of presidential recreation which has been in favor for more than fifteen years. The yacht came into service as the outgoing craft of presidents during the administration of President Wilson, and before that time had been used on several occasions by Presidents Roosevelt and Taft.

Built in Clydebank, Scotland, in 1896, the Mayflower is 273 feet long, has a beam of 36 feet and displaces 2600 tons. It was purchased for the navy in 1898 at a cost of $430,000 for use in the Spanish-American war. For two years after the war she was in West Indian waters and in the latter part of 1902 she was designated as the flagship of Admiral Dewey.

In July, 1905, the Mayflower carried the special envoys of Russia and Japan to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, to arrange terms of peace between the two countries.

In 1906 she was used as dispatch boat and protected American interests in Santo Domingo.

AL TO HELP PICK

Tammany Fails to Agree on "Man from the Ranks" for New Chieftain

New York — (AP) — Having failed to pick a man "from the ranks," Tammany Saturday was looking to former Governor Alfred E. Smith and other party leaders to help choose a new chieftain.

After accepting the resignation of George W. Olvany, Friday, the executive committee of Tammany found itself deadlocked on the choice of a successor. A committee was appointed to consult Mr. Smith, Mayor Walker, Surrogate James A. Foley and United States Senator Wagner.

The decision to invite the titular head of the Democratic party into the councils of the Wigwam was an about-face on the part of the district leaders. During a week of intensive campaigning among themselves they had ignored Mr. Smith in their determination that no "outsider" should have a voice in picking the new leader.

Until the committee of emissaries has had time to act and a new leader is named, Olvany will continue to discharge the duties of the position from which his sudden resignation a week ago threw Tammany into a turmoil of internal strife.

Although the week's campaign under the slogan "A man from the ranks" had brought forward John F. Curry and Martin G. McCue, district leaders, as outstanding candidates, no vote was taken at the executive committee meeting.

Disabled Vets In Serious Situation, McNutt Avers

Superior — (AP) — A serious situation for disabled war veterans, especially the mentally ill, has been created by the failure of congress to pass the hospital bill, Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American legion, said Saturday.

"The failure of congress to enact the $11,450,000 hospital construction bill in the closing days of the seventy-eighth congress has left 5,159 neuro-psychiatric veterans awaiting hospitalization by the government," McNutt said.

"Of this number, there are 2,762 whose mental illness is directly connected with their service in the World war, while 1,671 more veterans suffering the same illness are entitled to hospitalization by the government, but cannot receive the care intended for them under section 202, Paragraph 10, of the World War Veterans' act. There are 756 more veterans who are now in overcrowded state institutions and who should be cared for in government hospitals."

Mr. McNutt said there is no hope that the special session of congress can take up the needed legislation, and that it will have to wait until the gathering of the seventy-first congress, next December, for consideration.

In outlining the activities of his organization, the speaker said, in part:

"We have a present program for the disabled man, and the first thing on that program is to improve and expedite our own service to him."

"The second phase of our program is to bring about additional liberalized provisions in the laws affecting disabled veterans."

"The third phase is to see to it that existing administrative agencies give a liberal interpretation to existing laws."

"Second only to the care of the disabled man comes the newly and homeless child of the war veteran," McNutt declared in sketching the further duties that the legion has assumed. He said that it is to make possible for these children every equality and opportunity.

DANCING LESSONS

$100, REPORT SAYS

Superior — (AP) — Here's something new in expense accounts.

Among the items submitted to the police board here Friday night by the city's police matron was a bill for $100 for dancing lessons. In her pursuit of juvenile delinquents, the matron explained, it had been necessary for her to know something of the terephorean art.

In view of the fact that she is one of the oldest members on the force, the police board took the matter under consideration pending an investigation into the terephorean activities of other police officials.

—Man in Street-car Seriously Wounded

Chicago — (AP) — The gangland death sentence—"let him have it"—was shouted in front of Danny Stanton's saloon on S. Halsted-street Friday night, and a sub-machine gun sprayed death to Raymond Cassidy.

Five men, four of whom carried revolvers, leaped from a closed car that drew up where Cassidy and several others were in conversation. Cassidy was clubbed. At the command, "let him have it," the fifth man drew a sub-machine gun from under his coat, and Cassidy fell.

A street car, passing during the firing, and bullets poured through the windows. James Hawkins, 22, on his way to visit his fiancée, was struck in the eye, and perhaps mortally wounded.

Cassidy was known to police as a gambler and member of a beer-running gang. He formerly was a salaried district policeman. He was to have been married next week to Miss Julia Webb, who rushed across the street from her home after the shooting and fell across his body.

BELIEVE CANTON CHIEFS WILL SUPPORT NANKING

Canton, China — (AP) — Developments in the military situation here Saturday were taken by observers to mean that those now directing the city's affairs planned to take over the city in favor of the Nanking government. Their superior, and the city's nominal officials, are at Nanking attending the Kuomintang congress.

There were heavy troop movements over the city and artillery was stationed on the hill within its confines.

General Hwang Shao-Sung, governor of Kwangsi and leader of the Kwangsi clique, unexpectedly arrived and indicated that he would oppose any pro-Nanking activities. The situation has resulted in some uneasiness and the money market has become upset. Business is at a standstill.

Resentment at Nanking's detention of Marshal Li Chai-Sim, governor of Canton, is growing.

FORM LARGE

Action Follows After Banks Demand That Broker
Customers Cut Loans

Chicago — (AP) — A forty million dollar money pool was being formed Saturday to be available for call loans secured by stocks listed on the Chicago stock exchange.

The pool was decided upon Friday night after local banks had called upon their broker customers to reduce their loans. It followed a disastrous day on the Chicago exchange during which stocks were sold regardless of price in response to the calling of loans by the banks.

R. Arthur Wood, president of the exchange, announced that $10,000,000 of the pool would be available Saturday and the other $30,000,000 Monday.

The exchange, he said, would operate what corresponds to a money post of the New York exchange, and would charge borrowers the prevailing New York call money rate.

Governors of the Chicago exchange conferred with representatives of loan banks Friday night. The conference followed the regular monthly meeting of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank board at which no action was taken toward changing that institution's 5 per cent discount rate.

MEET AT WASHINGTON
At Washington there was a meeting of the Federal Reserve board, with all members and ex-officio members present, but no announcement was made as to the purpose or what action, if any, was decided upon.

At Friday night's conference between bankers and stock exchange officials, the bankers explained that they had no desire to injure the local securities market. Their action in demanding that their broker-customer reduce their loans was forced, they explained, by the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago, which in turn acted upon insistence from the Federal Reserve board.

One explanation of Friday's drop in prices on the Chicago exchange was that brokers had acted hastily in the effort to reduce their loans. The banks, after receiving word Wednesday from the Federal Reserve board to reduce their loans, passed the word on, but told the brokers to take their time and work out an orderly correction of the situation.

Word of the action, however, spread quickly through the financial district, and was followed by the dumping of stocks at whatever prices they would bring, so that call loans might be met.

Gale Covers
10 Counties
With Snow

Train and Bus Service Delayed in Territory Surrounding Superior

Superior — (AP) — King Winter shook all the snow out of his long white beard and sent great puffs of wind sweeping the country-side all night long, so that Saturday morning the oldest of the lumberjacks are recalling the tales of John Bunyan's winter of the blue snow.

The snow, carried by the crest of a 35-miles wind, covered 10 counties in the northern part of the state to a depth varying from two to six inches. In many places it drifted to a depth of several feet.

Some trains were reported late and bus service was delayed until Saturday morning. Although few roads were really blocked, automobile traffic was handicapped. The temperature remained above the zero mark.

Superior, looking in a spring-like temperature and looking for robins, bore the brunt of the storm, which swept like a gale off Lake Superior. Within half an hour street car service was disrupted, 15 of the cars being stalled in the business district.

During the late afternoon rush hours three fires broke out to add to the confusion. However, little damage was done at any of them.

Meanwhile motorists have been warned by the highway commission to avoid northern Wisconsin roads until Sunday.

Dispatches to the Superior Telegram indicate that the storm was general throughout the northern part of the state.

Spooner seemed to be near the center of the disturbance, but reported no serious damage. Roads around Iron River were declared to be in poor conditions as a result of the snow, but were passable.

Reports from Ladysmith, Rice Lake, Cumberland and other places received a word phenomenon. Thunder and lightning accompanied the snow storm. Several persons even declared that they saw a beautiful rainbow.

Weather forecasts for the region today promised more snow, but there was no indication that it would be accompanied by the high winds of last night.

NEW CHARGE HURLED IN TEXAS PATRONAGE CASE

Washington — (AP) — Testimony that Senator Blaise, Democrat, South Carolina, had contributed $500 to the organization headed by Joseph W. Tolbert, Republican national committeeman for the state, and that while governor, Blaise pardoned two of Tolbert's cousins was held before the senate patronage committee Saturday by W. F. Brown, Charleston, S. C., contractor.

Brown told the committee that in June, 1921, Tolbert advised him that he "wanted Blaise for federal district attorney, that Blaise had contributed liberally" to his campaign funds and "had given $500."

Tolbert further said, Brown declared that Blaise while governor, had pardoned two of his cousins, one of whom, a man named Henderson, was postmaster at North Charleston. He did not say what the connections against the men were.

Friday Rains Again Send Rivers To Higher Levels

(By The Associated Press)
The first heavy rain of the year Friday night again sent the gauge levels on the Rock river upward, and that stream had begun to recede earlier in the day.

A four-inch rise was marked at Beloit, bringing the river level 10 inches above the high-water record of 1881. From 15 to 20 blocks on the west side of the city are flooded, a number of plants have curtailed their operations, a theatre has been closed, and the city's annual bowling tournament probably will take the form of some new aquatic sport, for the alleys on which it is to be rolled are slowly being inundated.

For the first time, so far as records reveal, the main line of the Northwestern railroad, north of Beloit, is flooded.

At Portage, the Wisconsin river rose 11.63 feet early Saturday. That is only one-fifth of an inch below the flood stage. The river was reported to be slowly rising.

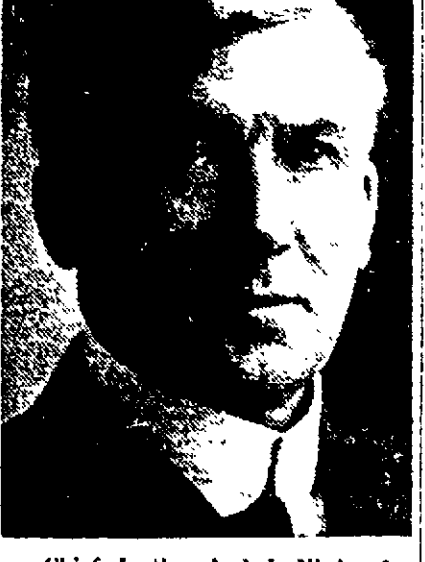

Refuge from canvas has been floated from the residence streets of New London and smaller towns along the streams, leaving a grave problem of sanitation.

The paper and gravel dikes of the highway workers proved their worth by warding off flood waters from Northport, west of Ne London, as well as highway 54.

Flood water of the Wolf river at Gull's Landing, near Oshkosh, had reached a height of nine feet, four and one-half inches at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, according to Alvin H. Tripp, president of the Association for the Relief of High Waters. Mr. Tripp declared that he believed the peak of the flood had been reached.

More than 218,000 acres of land in the upper Wolf valley are under water, he declared. In Outagamie county 50,000 acres are flooded.

IN COMA SINCE FRIDAY
Never Recovered Fully Since He Contracted Influenza in Norway

Madison — (AP) — And J. Vinje, chief justice of the Wisconsin Supreme court, died at home shortly after noon Saturday. He had been ill for several months. Chief Justice Vinje was 72 years old.

Justice Vinje had served 18 years on the supreme court bench of Wisconsin. He was a native of Voss, Norway. While on a visit to his birthplace in Voss a year ago he contracted influenza and had not been able to rid himself of the effects of the illness.

After returning to this country he was not able to resume court work, but was thought to be improving, and less than two weeks ago he was taken from an automobile ride.

Three days ago he suffered a relapse. He steadily became weaker, and Friday went into a coma state from which he did not awaken.

He is survived by Mrs. Vinje, who was Miss Miller of Oregon, Wis., one son, Arthur M. Vinje, who has been his father's private secretary and staff photographer for a Madison newspaper; two daughters, Mrs. A. R. Taylor, Winona, Minn., and Mrs. Alfred Walker, Iron Mountain, Mo. Two sisters are living, Mrs. Andrew H. Dahl, La Crosse, and Miss Ellen Vinje, Northwood, Iowa.

Funeral services will be held at the Unitarian church here at 10:30 Tuesday morning. The body will be taken to Milwaukee for cremation after services here. It has not been decided who will conduct the services.

It was said of Chief Justice Vinje that "the forces of his mind worked with military precision."

OF NORSE NOBILITY

Descending from a line of Norwegian nobility, And John Vinje was born at Voss, Norway, Nov. 30, 1857. His maternal grandfather was among the last of the titled Norwegians. The future jurist spent his early boyhood in Norway, emigrating from that country with his mother and step-father to Marshfield, Iowa, in 1869. While in Norway he attended the rural schools somewhat irregularly but after taking up residence in the United States, he became a regular attendant of the common schools of Iowa.

Mr. Vinje early exhibited an aptitude for study, which was recognized by his mother, who was anxious that he obtain a liberal education, and after finishing the common schools in 1874, he began a course at Grinnell college, Iowa. The following year, however, he left that institution and continued his studies at Northwestern university, Des Moines, Iowa, after which he spent years teaching in the country schools of that state.

In the search for more knowledge, he entered the preparatory department of the University of Wisconsin in 1878, and continued his studies irregularly in that institution until he was graduated from both the modern classical and scientific courses in 1884 with high honors. Circumstances forced Mr. Vinje to put himself through school, which he did by teaching and conducting teachers' institutes.

WON ATTENTION
While at the University of Wisconsin, his studious habits, logical qualities of mind, and his orderly methods of work attracted the notice of both the faculty and his fellow students. He was particularly interested in philosophy and the study of languages, and through his studies acquired a good knowledge of French and German, which later helped him materially in his work as a judge. It was said that he could follow a witness in Norse, German or French and if necessary, translate the testimony into

British Schooner Sunk By U. S. Coastguard Cutter

1 DEAD, CREW OF RUM SHIP PUT IN IRONS

Master Refuses to Heave to and Submit to Search by Federal Men

New Orleans—(AP)—Coastguard cutters Dexter and Walcott plowed up the swollen Mississippi to New Orleans Saturday, towing in from the crew of the British schooner Imalone, including one dead member, the victim of a gun battle at sea off the Louisiana coast, after 24 hours of fighting.

The Imalone was shelled by the Dexter Friday when her unidentified master refused to submit to search, on being overhauled by the coast guard boat and sent to the bottom with a suspected cargo of contraband.

The elusive craft which coast guardsmen say carried on successful liquor smuggling operations for three years off the coast of New England was sunk near "Sixty Deep" off Marsh island.

Government officials here and Admiral F. C. Ballard, commander of the coast guard in Washington, said reports at hand indicated that the guns were fired within the jurisdiction of the United States.

ACTED UNDER ORDERS
Orders were issued to the cutters' masters to arrest all craft within the limits suspected of engaging in smuggling operations. The guardships Dallas, Forward and Dexter were ordered to converge on the schooner as soon as it was sighted. Officer Frank Paul, commander of the Walcott, first radioed that the Imalone was sighted Thursday.

These reports said the master of the rum schooner defied an ultimatum of the commander of the Dexter to heave to and submit to search. Thereupon the Dexter issued final warning of "I'll have to sink you then. Get your men into the boats before we fire."

The schooner still resisted and the raiding government boat fired. The suspected rum crew quickly took to boats and all were picked up by the Dexter and Walcott, the latter of which had sped to the scene.

The body of a Negro seaman who drowned in the fight to the boats was recovered and placed upon the Walcott.

SHIOCTON FIGHTS FLOOD WATERS AS PEOPLE USE BOATS

Relief Is in Sight as River Recedes, but Danger Still Exists

BY W. F. WINSEY
Shiocton—While the water is not as high here as in the spring of 1922 and the water in the river has receded an inch and on the east side of Main-st., nearly six inches, the houses in a number of blocks in the east and south-east portion of the village are surrounded with water and the lawns and yards are submerged. The village is practically an island in the middle of a lake with the distance a half-mile to the shore.

Some pupils of the public schools have been making use of row boats and scows as ferries in streams, ponds and lagoons to reach their school rooms dry shod and without wading or swimming. In some quarters boats are moored at the front doors of dwellings to serve as the most convenient means of moving around the building or reaching dry places on the sidewalks and streets. At points where sections of a street are submerged boats are pulled up on either shore, or are available on short notice for the use of pedestrians.

Although the river is very high and has submerged a few small and large farms and gardens to the depth of two or three feet, the water that is causing the villagers the most trouble is what they call "back water" which appears to come from the direction of the Black Creek marshes. On its way south to the river it crosses the village.

This water has formed a large lake to the south of the village and is running over a part of Highway 76 at the south entrance to the village. Water from the river is running over the west approach to the bridge where Highway 76 enters the village from the west.

MANUAL CONTROL IS OPERATING SIGNALS

The traffic signal lights at the corner of College and Oneida-st. have been operated by manual control since Thursday night when the gears in the automatic operating mechanism were stripped. A police officer is stationed at the corner continually to operate the signals. The officers will be in white. According to Louis Luebke, department electrician, the parts to repair the damage are expected Saturday.

LIONS TO DISCUSS NEW HIGH SCHOOL

These Lawyers Will Fight Dry Cases Without Charge

Here are some of the men prominently connected with the newly organized Personal Liberty Committee, a nation-wide organization of attorneys who seek to protect the lesser offenders under the Jones liquor law. At the right is Frederic R. Couderc, Jr., of New York, chairman of the committee. Next are Carl Newton, New York; Julian Codman, Boston; Col. H. T. Kingsbury, New York.

LAWYERS TO FIGHT JONES LAW CASES WITHOUT CHARGE

Attorneys Organize Personal Liberty Committee to Oppose Dry Convictions

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

New York—As a protest against convictions under the new Jones law, a group of lawyers here has organized a Personal Liberty Committee offering free legal service to "worthy cases who may be subject to heavy penalties provided for under the law."

The attorneys propose to fight this measure with the same vigor as was displayed in the '50's in the case of the fugitive slave law, after the Dred Scott decision, Frederic R. Couderc, Jr., chairman of the committee declared.

"Since the sale of a glass of beer has been raised to the dignity of a felony," he said, "carrying penalties similar to those provided in this state for assault and manslaughter it was thought wise to form a committee to assist those who have done nothing condemned by civilized society and who might be subject to such severe punishment."

TO RESTRICT SERVICES
"We do not intend to offer our services for the aid of the man who is a wealthy wholesaler of liquor, or to the proprietor of any disreputable club, or to the fellow selling denatured alcohol, but we are going to fight to the limit for the poor devil who is in danger of five years imprisonment for putting a drink across the bar."

On the committee are seven former government prosecutors of the Southern District of New York, who are ready to defend at their own expense persons accused of violating the Jones Act. These are Couderc, Frederic C. Bellinger, Edmund Lumbard, Carl Newton, Charles L. Sylvester and Kenneth F. Simpson. Many other lawyers have volunteered their services.

The Personal Liberty Committee is a local departure from the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, Inc., formed for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. That organization has representatives in all sections of the country.

CARRY ON DRIVE
The voluntary committee of lawyers plans to carry its enforcement action right into the heart of the dry territories, according to George Westervelt, secretary of the committee, who said that he was in communication with leading lawyers of Kansas City, Oklahoma City and Indianapolis at the present. Similar committees have been formed in Buffalo, Baltimore, Washington, Cleveland and Newark.

Julian Codman and Alexander Lincoln of Boston have a committee under organization which includes C. S. Rackmann, W. K. Richardson, Samuel Hoar, and Richard Story. James H. Winston and Mitchell D. Follansbee are forming a committee in Chicago, and W. W. Montgomery, partner of Owen Roberts who represented the United States in the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills cases, is forming a committee in Philadelphia.

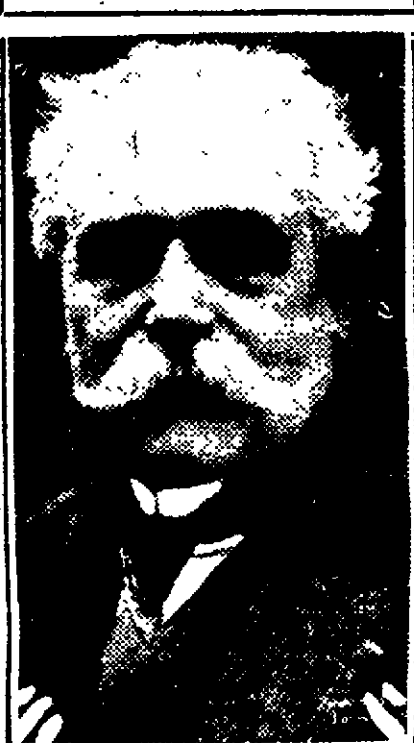

High officials in charge of prohibition enforcement are surprised and not a little relieved to hear that the attorneys are uniting against the legal measure.

"STRANGE," SAYS DRY
"I gather that the purpose of this organization is to cause juries to disregard the law," said J. M. Doran, Commissioner to Prohibition in Washington. "This seems to me a very strange thing for a group of lawyers to do."

"It is a direct reflection upon judges, because penalties under the Jones law are entirely up to them. A judge doesn't need to give an offender more than $1 fine or a day in jail. I don't see why the committee of lawyers is assuming that judges will pursue a fatalistic course. Asked what enforcement officials intended to do about the defense move he replied: "Nothing. This is still a free country."

"But the Jones act amending the prohibition law is a different matter from the Eighteenth Amendment, which has been a part of the Consti-

GENERAL SERRAIL

Gen. Sarrail, Foch Friend Dies In Paris

"Defender of Verdun" Succumbs Three Days After World War Marshal

Paris—(AP)—General Maurice Emmanuel Sarrail, one-time "defender of Verdun" and former high commissioner in Syria, died Saturday at the age of 75.

General Sarrail, who commanded the Third French army at the first battle of the Marne and was decorated with the military medal for his courage and tenacity in holding Verdun and the heights of the Meuse, died Saturday afternoon, just three days after his chief, Marshal Foch.

The general had been ill for three weeks suffering from liver trouble which became serious on the very day that Marshal Foch died.

General Sarrail perhaps was best known as "the man who bombarded Damascus," and for his share in the Druze rebellion.

His record before Verdun at the head of the Third French Army allied troops in the Balkans was overshadowed before the world at large by his activities as French high commissioner to Syria in 1925. Even in France people spoke of him as "Sarrail of Damascus."

He acquired a liking for the political life while military commander of the chamber of deputies from 1902 to 1901. Since then he was prominent in the councils of the radical party. A staunch man of the "lefts" he was twice candidate for parliament and defeated both times. He was placed on the retired list as a general of division by the nationalist government of Clemenceau in 1918.

When the radical party came into power with Herriot in 1924, Sarrail was appointed high commissioner to Syria, replacing General Weygand, whose policies were unacceptable to the radicals. The new high commissioner, a free thinker, refused to attend the religious ceremony given in his honor at Beirut by the Catholic clergy of Syria and thereby incurred the enmity of that party.

Catholics called to high posts and decorated with the cross of the Legion of Honor by Weygand were flung into jail by his successor and in some instances the cravat of the Legion of Honor around their necks was replaced by a rope of hemp as they swung from the scaffolds. Syria soon was in turmoil, which developed into rebellion, the bombardment of Damascus, and Sarrail's retirement.

Maurice Paul Emmanuel Sarrail was born at Carcassonne, April 6, 1856. At the age of 60 he was mar-

SENATE TO RECONSIDER SCHMIEGE'S MEASURE

Assemblyman Oscar J. Schmieg's bill proposing one day of rest in seven for policemen in cities of the third class is to be reconsidered by the state senate Tuesday. tution for several years," Kenneth Simpson said.

"When it comes to a point of imposing a five year prison term and a $10,000 fine for each conviction of selling or transporting liquor, I feel it is high time for all lawyers and other citizens who still cherish the preservation of our civil liberties to take as drastic action as they can without inciting rebellion or urging nullification."

BRANDED "UNETHICAL"
Discussing the new organization, Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism said:

"It seems incredible that lawyers who by their own oaths when admitted to the bar are presumed to be officers of the court and defenders of the law, should embark upon such an undertaking."

"The overwhelming popular support of this law prevents its repeal. Defeated in any attempt to capture the required majorities in Congress, the supporters of the outlawed beverage liquor traffic are resorting to methods which to put it very mildly, are highly unethical."

CHICAGO FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD IS IN BAD POSITION

Demand for Funds for Speculative Purposes Has Taxed Its Capacity

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association

Chicago—The federal reserve board in the Chicago district finds itself "in the middle" as credit demands cause financiers to look for an increase in the rate charged for rediscounting bank paper.

Twice before the local institution has held the limelight as a result of its attitude toward rediscount privileges. It opposed the original lowering of the rate to accommodate European bankers and followed the lead of other federal reserve districts only when ordered to do so. Then when supported in its contention that individual districts could not be based by the central board, it led the way in increasing rates.

Now the Chicago banks find themselves in a credit squeeze, due to unusual circumstances. The result is that financial leaders expect that the local district will be in the limelight again in the event any of the reserve institutions raises its rate for rediscounting.

State law in Illinois prevents banks from charging more than seven per cent on money loaned to individuals. This has resulted in a heavy demand for funds for speculative purposes, because the call loan rate frequently has averaged considerably above seven per cent.

In addition, owing to severe tax difficulties, local banks are being called upon in a good measure to finance the various branches of the local government. This drain is estimated to be nearly $100,000,000 and besides, normal deposits from local tax bodies, are lacking.

POSITION UNSATISFACTORY
As a result the reserve position of the Chicago federal reserve is described as the least satisfactory of any at this time of year since 1921.

Several of the larger banks here have called on their broker clients to reduce collateral loans 25 to 50 per cent. By this method it is hoped to cut down the borrowing of local banks from the federal reserve institution, making less necessary an increased rediscount rate. The action of the district board on the proposed increase is expected to be determined by the success or failure of this policy of individual institutions.

The volume of stock trading in this district is likely to be increased

White Bass Fishing To Open Angling Program

BY B. A. CLAFLEN

In a former article I spoke of the fishing to be had in our "backyards." I did not mean literally, of course, but, with the automobile of today the regions lying a hundred miles or so distant can be reached in a few hours, and they are the backyard I refer to.

I receive a great many letters each month, not only from local inquiries, but from anglers all over the middle states, asking for information on where to go to find good fishing. These inquiries cover a wide range so far as the kind of angling desired is concerned. And we have it right here in Wisconsin, not so good, it is true, as in former years, but if the angler is content to take toll commensurate with the supply, he can find places where good specimens of the different kinds still hold forth.

The pickerel and wall-eyed pike seem to hold their own better than other species. The former can be taken from most any lake where weed beds abound, and from many of our rivers. The wall-eyes are plentiful in numerous lakes in Langlade county, and all within a distance of a hundred miles.

Our trout fishing, I dislike to say, is fast declining, and yet, in the more remote places one can still get them in limited numbers. The bass, too, in inland waters within a radius of a hundred miles are nowhere as plentiful as they once were. It requires a knowledge of their haunts, and the right kind of equipment to meet with success with them. All auto roads lead to fishing waters and that easily explains the growing scarcity of most of our game fish.

The first angling on the program for this season will be for the white bass of the Wolf river. This will begin when the plum trees are in blossom. That, however, is a mere coincidence. This year, owing to the high water, should be a banner one for that sport. About the best places to go for them are at Fremont, Mills Landing and Ora Houle. The best route is via Appleton and up through Dale to Fremont.

Here boats can be procured and you can fish below the town with good success. Or you can drive down the west side of the river to Ora Houle. Here you will find the fishing very good. Fairly good wall-eyed fishing may be had at Fremont before the white bass run is on. This is lawful on the Wolf from New London down to Lake Poygan at this time, although in most other waters of the state, the season does not open until May 25. Live minnows and spinners are the best lures for this fine fish.

HEALTH TRAIL IS LAUNCHED BY GIRLS

Dr. G. W. Carlson Discusses Tuberculosis Before Students

The Girls' Athletic association of Appleton high school launched the "Girls Health Trail Project" which is sponsoring in conjunction with the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association and the Appleton Woman's club Friday afternoon in the high school assembly. Dr. G. W. Carlson gave a talk on Tuberculosis, explaining the causes, the symptoms and prevention of the disease. Miss Dorothy Rayfield read a paper on Health and sketches were given depicting the different girls' sports.

The purpose of the "Girls Health Trail" is to stimulate health habits among girls in an effort to cut down the exceedingly high tuberculosis death rate of girls between the ages of 15 and 25. A set of pamphlets, proper eating, rest and exercise, healthful clothes and the value of sunshine, have been prepared by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. The first of the pamphlets were given out Friday. The Girls' Athletic association also will sponsor the Health Trail at the junior high schools.

BANKS TENDING TO CONSOLIDATE WITH TRUST COMPANIES

Trend Shown Again by Merger of Bank of America With Blair

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE

Copyright 1929

Wall Street, New York—(Review and outlook)—The consolidation of the Bank of America with the private banking house of Blair and company, which was announced Friday, represents a tendency in the American banking world that has far reaching possibilities.

There are two developments now under way which explain some of the mergers that have been made and are being considered and which have caused such a wild market recently in bank and trust company stocks. One is the desire of some of the older banks that are limited by their charters and by the national banking law to certain services and investments to attach to themselves a trust company with all of the profitable business that is developing in such companies.

SMALL BANKS ABSORBED
The trend toward banking consolidation in this country follows after what has been done along this line of Europe and in England where many small banks have been absorbed by the comparatively few big institutions and private banking houses with centuries of traditions have been taken over in recent years. The old German banking houses of Speyer and Warburg and of Mendelssohn still retain their prominence. In England there are the Barings, Morgans and Brown, Shipley and Company.

HIGH SCHOOLS IN 20 STATES TO GIVE POLITICAL COURSES

Educators to Give Youth Sound Conception of Public Affairs

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The rather stupendous task of giving Americans a political education has at least been begun.

In a score or more states educators are struggling with a vision of the day when high school graduates may enter life with some conception of public affairs and free from the many dumb superstitions commonly supposed to afflict the average American voter.

"Problems of democracy," courses are being taught in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and North Carolina, among other states, and have met with special success in adjacent Maryland, where the state department of education has issued an extensive bulletin outlining the curricula made by teachers in Queen Anne's county. In most instances such courses have been established for the last high school year.

The outstanding leader in the movement is Professor J. Montgomery Gambrell, head of the history department of Teachers College, Columbia University, who has expressed the hope that it might "break down some of the smugness, cockiness and ignorant dogmatism so common among those who have never heard of scientific methods and are blissfully unconscious of what is involved in the serious study of social and civic problems."

Gambrell was called in to advise with the Maryland state department of education concerning the experiment in Queen Anne's county, results of which will form the basis for extension of "problem courses" over the state.

"The pupil must learn how to read facts," Gambrell says. "He should learn that our public problems are far the most complex, and that men of education and intelligence differ about them, which hardly justifies dogmatism in a youngster that 'very few citizens, even the most accomplished, have the time and facilities for thorough study of any great number of problems; that we live in an age of propaganda; that there are specialists in many fields who are, relatively, at least, objective in their methods of study; and—whose findings must be considered."

"We might hope also that our pupils would make some progress in healthy skepticism toward propaganda, that he would tend to demand higher standards in his newspapers and periodicals; that he would recognize that these social and civic questions have many sides, rather than two sides, and that all solutions are partial or at a price, and that such problems as may be approached with some degree of realism."

Among objects of the course as stated by the department of education are:

"To have pupils form the habit of expressing positive and confident opinions on questions only after a critical examination of the available evidence and after a careful consideration of the various possible solutions."

"To have pupils form attitudes, ideals and habits of thinking that will cause them to be open-minded, critical in their thinking, and tolerant in the views of others."

The Maryland kids started off with a three-month course on "public opinion" and their teachers undertook to show them how they turned their existing opinions and how they ought to form opinions in the future. Recognizing that teachers might not always be competent to administer such a course, Gambrell and E. Clarke Fontaine, state supervisor of high schools, undertook to make it fool-proof.

The main object of "public opinion" course was to train the youngsters to read newspapers intelligently. Subsequent topics include such matters as tariff, prohibition, relief in politics, reparations, foreign trade, public utility regulation and similar problems. The teachers are supposed to be careful not to impose their own opinions on the pupils, merely seeing to it that all the facts on the various issues are produced and all misconceptions and illusions banished.

The increased interest which students in Maryland and elsewhere are taking in public affairs is becoming obvious to all agencies of information. Editorial Research Reports, an organization devoted to furnishing accurate and exhaustive information to editors and publishers, has established a special student service of monthly bulletins to meet the thirst for facts.

Government departments and bureaus are also besieged for information. In answer to innumerable requests from high school students the State Department last year published a 66-page pamphlet purporting to explain the American intervention in Nicaragua and giving all reasons except the real ones.

Madison — (P) — Col. Charles A. Lindbergh Friday wired C. E. Shafer, chief clerk of the assembly, that he will not be able to come to Madison and address the legislature on aviation because of his "engagement." Colonel Lindbergh had been invited by joint resolution to speak before the two houses at his own convenience on the Slater aviation code bill.

22 BADGER CITIES GIVE FREE DENTAL SERVICE TO PUPILS

Clinics Are Financed by Public Funds or by Civic Organizations

Madison — (P) — School pupils in 22 Wisconsin cities received free dental service, paid either from public funds or by civic organizations, according to a survey made by the public health nursing bureau.

Cities offering pupils such service are: Appleton, Beaver Dam, Deloit, Chippewa Falls, Fond du Lac, Green Bay, Janesville, Kaukauna, Kenosha, Racine, Sheboygan, Stevens Point, Sun Prairie, Wausau, Watertown and Waterville.

In Milwaukee, the work is organized under a full-time director of oral hygiene and numerous dentists employed in the school hygiene division of the health department.

Dental procedure begins with examination of pupils for needs for dental care. Defects are specified on a card and payments are used to obtain the service of the family dentist in most cities, although in three cases a charge of 10 cents a set is made and in another city a charge is made only for materials used.

Dental hygienists are employed in connection with schools at Appleton, LaCrosse, Milwaukee, Watertown and Wausau. She is a special instructor in dental hygiene, trained for thorough examination and care of the teeth and assists the dentists. At Appleton, the work is part time, in other cities full time.

Commenting on this branch of health work, Miss Cornelia VanKooij, director of the public health nursing bureau, said:

"Prophylactic school dental work offers an enormous financial saving, at a cost, considering the magnitude of the work, which has been almost negligible. Of first importance, however, are the returns in public health on the investment in dental care."

Daily Lenten Thought

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

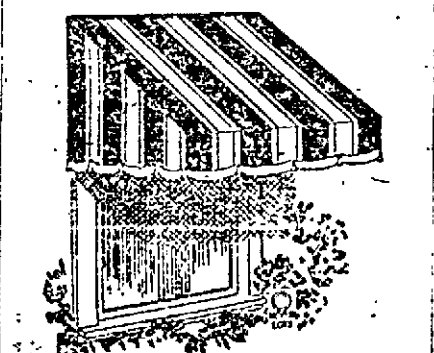

Editor of The Congregationalist.

The illustration may seem homely and inadequate for the greatness of the idea and ideal, but I have never found anything that quite so aptly illustrates the right attitude of the soul toward God as the story of a negro and his bride. The negro asked the minister who married them how much he should give him, and the minister facetiously and rather foolishly replied, "How much do you think your bride is worth?" The negro said, "You'd make me bankrupt for the rest of my life."

"That is how every man who has a deep sense of the love of God feels toward that love. It is, moreover, suggestive of the inherent quality and incentive of all true love—human and divine. Where there is such love, the question is always not how little we can do, or a cupping consideration of what we should do. The one thought is, how much can I do for love and in response to love?"

Love is never calculating, or it calculates it is to estimate how much can be given, never how little. "Fulfillment," "abundance," "eternal"—these are the sort of words in which the New Testament speaks of the love of God to men, and our love should move in the same realm of expression.

SPORTS NEWS OF NEENAH AND MENASHA SOCIETY

SPORTSMAN CLUB IS TOLD HOW TO RAISE PHEASANTS

Attorney A. S. Bradford,
Appleton, Speaks to Neenah Organization

Neenah — More than 200 hunters and sportsmen, members of the Twin City Sportsman club, gathered at the city hall for the monthly meeting. The principal part of the program was the talk by Attorney Alfred S. Bradford, Appleton, president of the Outagamie Fish and Game Protective association and the showing of five reels of motion pictures taken among the muskellunge lakes in Canada.

Mr. Bradford talked mostly on the care and raising of pheasants, the habits of the birds, methods of raising them, and the manner in which they are to be liberated. He asked the local club to cooperate with the Outagamie club in raising and planting these birds inasmuch as many of them which his club have liberated are in Winnebago county. He told of a plan of establishing a game refuge of 3,200 acres in the southern part of the town of Greenville and the northern part of the town of Clayton which will serve as a haven for pheasants, prairie chickens and rabbits. He told of a two-acre bass pond which has been provided by the federal government and will be ready for operation in the spring. He claimed there were two ways to get game at our doors, one being to watch legislation and the other to propagate fish and game and assist the conservation commission in filling the woods and ponds with fish and game.

The meeting adopted the bylaws under which the club will operate. A resolution was drafted, voicing the objection of this club to proposed changes in the hunting laws whereby the season would open Oct. 1 instead of Sept. 15, a copy of which is to be forwarded to the legislators from this locality. It also was decided to purchase 55 more pairs of pheasants to raise and turn loose in the fall.

KOHLER LEGISLATION

The senate has passed the two major administration proposals, namely reorganization of the highway commission and creation of a budget system, in response to the wishes of Gov. Kohler. It is to be said to the credit of the Progressive members as well as Conservatives, that they have cooperated in bringing about this desired result. Considering the feeling that was aroused in the gubernatorial campaign last year, much less of prejudice and obstruction has manifested itself in the legislature than might have been expected. All of this is to be commended as indicating a greater willingness on the part of the lawmakers to enact legislation with reference to its merits rather than from the standpoint of politics.

The highway commission reorganization and budget system bills now go to the assembly. It is to be hoped the members of this body will take the same broad view of these important questions as did the members of the senate and that both measures will be favorably acted upon. It can be said for the highway bill that it stands to improve the administration of good roads construction and planning, and that it will save the taxpayers money and give them better highways. A wise expenditure of funds for highway construction and planning is of the utmost importance, both because of the very large sums of money employed for this purpose and because of the relation to Wisconsin's economic progress.

The merits of the budget system proposal are obvious. It must inevitably bring about a more businesslike conduct of state affairs and the consequent saving of much money to the taxpayers. It is one of the state's greatest needs. All opposition to it must in the last analysis be regarded as political. It will tend to cut down the perquisites of office and reduce the opportunities for extravagance in appropriations. The benefits of waste go entirely to grease the wheels of political machinery and constitute a flagrant imposition on the taxpayers. Indeed, the greatest problem of American government today is to cut off this excessive extravagance and administer public affairs more in accordance with actual cost.

The American people pay annually hundreds of millions of dollars in tribute to politics in state and local government. Law makers at Madison can render the people of Wisconsin no greater service than to approve legislation which will promise a change in this respect and help to rescue the state from the burdens of extravagance, waste and inefficiency. No private business could exist six months if its finances were handled in the manner they are handled at Madison. Before there can be reform the budget system is indispensable. The people expect the assembly to approve the budget system and highway reorganization bills.

MUSICAL DIPLOMACY

There is to be a polite interchange of radio music between the United States and the countries of Central and South America. The Pan-American Union has proposed the programs and has permission to broadcast them through the navy station at Arlington. The purpose is to bring the peoples of the Americas into closer relationship through their music. Those who ought to know tell us that there is remarkable musical talent in the Latin-American countries. They have produced many great artists. They have a music of their own as well as ability to interpret the music of other lands. Most of the capitals of South America have fine orchestras. The chorus at the opera house in Buenos Aires is among the world's finest. It will be a very fine thing for our citizens to get acquainted with the music of our neighbors to the south. Of their revolutions, we hear too much. We need to know more of their cultural life and abilities.

SAVE OUR NATURAL BEAUTIES

A bill has been introduced in the legislature which would authorize the Railroad commission to hereafter refuse permits to build dams in streams on the ground that it would destroy their scenic beauty. The measure is the outgrowth of the widespread opposition to the attempt of the Insull power interests to exploit the Wolf river through the Menominee reservation.

We trust the legislature will see fit to enact this proposal. In our opinion the time has come when the development of hydro-electric power has overreached itself in many states and communities, to the detriment of public welfare. There are some things more important than the generation of electricity by water power. The difference in cost between steam and water generated electricity is very slight. There are sections of the country in which steam power is cheaper. The idea that every stream with a flow sufficient to generate some hydro-electric current should be utilized for this purpose is altogether wrong. It represents neither economy nor conservation.

We think it is vastly more important that the open spaces and natural beauties and resources of the state should be saved to public enjoyment than that they should be destroyed or disfigured for commercial purposes. The value of playgrounds accessible to the people at large is not to be estimated in dollars. It is beyond the returns of any and all commercial projects. As our population grows and the stress of life increases, the need and value of these recreation facilities will steadily increase. We will betwix if we conserve them.

The enjoyment of some streams for fishing, camping and outdoor pursuits and of some forests for like purposes is far more important than their destruction for financial profit. We can get along without the power the streams would supply and we can get along without the wood the forests would provide, but we cannot well and favorably subsist without the streams and forests themselves. The extent of both is limited. We have encroached on them with a free hand. We have exploited them almost to the limit. It is time to call a halt. The bill which would enlarge the powers of the State Railroad commission as outlined above is a vital step in the direction of the further conservation of our natural resources, and should be passed.

PROTECTING PEDESTRIANS

The General Electric company has been carrying on experiments to determine how best to safeguard pedestrians on highways at night. Bright headlights on cars were found inadequate because they rarely revealed the pedestrian until it was too late to avoid an accident.

Lanterns or flashlights carried by the pedestrian would do the job, but other natural means were sought. After various experiments it was found that white clothing or a white handkerchief fluttering from the hand were the most reliable signs. Dark clothing rendered the wearer invisible even in the beams of bright headlights only 100 feet distant.

The General Electric investigators seem to know the obstinacy of pedestrians, for they declared that the latter could not be expected to wear or carry the necessary safety signals. The conclusion reached was that highways should be lighted with regular street lamps. With such a lighting system the pedestrian is revealed either directly in the light or indirectly by his black silhouette in the street.

Lighted highways, even through country districts, may be the common thing some day. It would seem much cheaper and safer, however, to build walks or footpaths along the roadside. Then motorists and walkers would have their respective lanes to follow and could do so without endangering each other or intruding on each other's rights.

POST-TONIC

The Remedy is Worse Than the Malady

Little Johnny: "Look at that rhinoceros." Little Willie: "That ain't no rhinoceros; that's a hippopotamus. Can't you see it ain't got no radiator cap?"

A Sunday school teacher was talking to her class about kindness to animals. "Now," she said, "if you saw a bad boy cutting off a cat's tail, what would you read him from the Bible to convince him that he was doing wrong?" One of the boys called out, "I would tell him 'What God hath joined together let no man cut asunder.'"

Give the names of your parents. "Mama and Papa."

TESTING 'EM OUT
 The boss called up his secretary. "Put up a sign outside the office," he said, "that no salesmen are allowed to enter." "But you advertised for a salesman." "That's just the reason. If a man can be stopped by a little sign like that, we don't want him."

Druggist—Yes, miss, you'll find most ladies like this lipstick.
 Young Local Girl—You couldn't tell me the kind that men like, could you?

Another prize dumbbell has been discovered. She thought the muffler on a car was used to keep it from freezing up.

Employer—"Ah, Brown, I've decided to raise your salary $2 a week."
 Brown—"Will you give me that in writing, sir?"
 Employer—"Isn't my word good enough for you?"
 Brown—"Oh, yes, sir. But I want evidence to show my wife. She's expecting me to get a $3 raise."

INJURY AND INSULT
 Patient (showing bill)—"What's the extra $5 for?"
 Dentist—"For squeezing the arms of my chair out of shape."

"Well, Tommy, did you behave in school today?" asked Tommy's father of his young son, who had not been going to school very long. "Behave?" exclaimed Tommy in a tone of amazement. "Of course I did! Why, the teacher said she never saw a pupil who behaved so."

SO THE DRIVER TOLD HIM
 A Scotchman driving a small cart drawn by a donkey came to a toll bridge. The toll collector came out of his house and said: "Here, you've got to pay before you can cross this bridge."

"Yes, 5 cents to cross the bridge."
 After an argument he paid the 5 cents and went on. In the afternoon he came back again, but this time he had the donkey sitting on the seat and he was dragging the cart himself. The Toll man came out and said:

"Here, you've got to pay 5 cents."
 The Scotchman shook his head, and pointing to the donkey, said: "Don't talk to me, ask the driver."

"I hear your friend Tamson's married again."
 "Aye, so he is. He's been a dear friend of mine. He's cost me three wedding presents and two wreaths."

"Bill has the disposition of a mule."
 "Then you'd better not talk about him behind his back."

Salesman: "I was shipwrecked once and lived for a week on a can of sardines."
 Train acquaintance: "Huh, you didn't have much room to move about, did you?"

Little Willie was sent to bring in the kittens. His mother heard a shrill "meowing" and called out: "Don't hurt the kittens, Willie."
 "Oh, no," replied Willie, "I'm carrying them very carefully by the stems."

Today's Anniversary

"GIVE ME LIBERTY OR—"
 On March 23, 1775, Patrick Henry roused the Virginia delegates to the Provincial Convention with one of the most stirring speeches in the world's history. The speech has come down to us as the greatest piece of oratory of the colonial era.

It was delivered in defense of resolutions which Henry himself introduced, to organize a militia and to put the colony in an attitude of defense. Its most stirring passage was:

"There is no retreat but in submission and slavery. Our chains are already formed. Their clanking may be heard on the plain. Of Boston the next day the clash of resounding arms. Our brethren are already in the field. Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

The resolutions were passed unanimously.

A BIG MAJORITY MAY BE WRONG

One thing we do not profess to believe is that right makes right, that our protestations are not always in accord with our practice in regard to this. Politically we accept the will of the majority but we deem it a kind of duty to maintain an active minority party in order to restrain the vicious propensities of the majority in power. No doubt a psychologist could reconcile the apparent incompatibilities and make one think all these things are exactly as they should be. But no psychologist can justify the attitude of right handed persons toward left handed persons, at least not in the mind of one who considers the matter in the light of evolution—which is the only light we have on it.

It happens that there is just one left handed person, naturally left handed, for every two dozen commonly ordinary natural right handed persons. Left handed persons are, then, somewhere between sergeants and lieutenants as to prevalence. (Lieutenants, by the way, are still lieutenants in certain provinces.) Just because we have a safe majority over the left handed is a poor reason for treating them contemptuously or as tho they were abnormal. How do we get that way, in the first place?

One cannot give this question of right or left handedness much thought or study without finding himself frequently wondering why most of us happen to prefer the right hand, and why practically all of us prefer to go thru life as one armed individuals, so far as our every day acts of skill are concerned.

Knowing and observing persons who have developed both hands for skillful use, one is constrained to think that right handedness or left handedness is a primitive habit and the supernumerary will be ambidextrous.

Offhand I find I can write better with my right foot (I am right handed) than with my left, but I feel positive that with a little daily practice I shall write as well or better with my left foot, and I am going to waste some time in the next few months practicing with my left foot. I have always preferred to hold a baseball bat as a left handed batter does. The right handed pitcher I have like wise preferred to hold a golf club as a left handed golfer does. I shoot right handed. I never did learn to connect with the ball in baseball, but I am sure I would have batted better had they left me to hold the bat as I pleased. I have a notion there is some association between one's vision and one's aim that should not be interfered with.

Two letters written by the same lady about a year apart before me. One would never suspect they had been written by the same person. The first is written right handed; the second left handed; one slants right, the other left; both are equally good writing, very good writing, in fact. This lady was a highly talented person, with a happy disposition and withal a great character; indeed she laid down her life cheerfully in order that her unborn child might live. Then I have another specimen of the handwriting of an ambidextrous man, now nearly 80; the man was a very good writer, a paper man; he includes with his right hand and left handed writing a bit of wavy writing—you have to hold it to the mirror to read it. He cites half a dozen cases of native or natural left handedness in his own family and his wife's family. His troubles began when he learned to write as a child—he wrote left handed and backward (mirror writing) until they forbade him to use the left hand. He has always had more skill in the use of the left hand for fine work. He has a daughter who is naturally left handed and he saw to it that her

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Strictly Personal
 A while ago I discussed skin inflammation here. I said: If you write for my treatise on eczema you will NOT get it. On the other hand, if you say "I have dermatitis" maybe I'll send you along some advice.

My purpose was not to conduct an intelligence test nor to try to be funny, but to confine the distribution of my treatise on the subject to persons whom such information is likely to benefit. Long experience has convinced me that there are persons whom advice or information of this kind is liable to harm. I wish all readers would feel perfectly free to ask me any questions they wish to ask about any matter of their own personal health, hygiene or happiness. If I can answer such questions, I am happy to do so. If I can't, I'll pretend they were never asked. In any case, the reader may be absolutely certain that his communication to me is sacredly confidential, so far as I am concerned.

Nearsightedness
 I am subject to myopia (nearsightedness) and have worn glasses for the past five years. Is there any method of restoring my sight to normal? I believe you stated some time ago that there are instruments in Paris designed for the treatment of the eyes. (R. LaB.)

Answer—I believe the wisest course for any young person who develops myopia (nearsightedness) is to wear glasses. The glasses prescribed by his eye physician after careful measurement of the vision with the eyes under the effects of drops. Perhaps the Paris hoax you refer to was some charlatan's contraption a correspondent inquired about.

Bare Knees
 I would like to know your views on bare knees for children in the winter time. I have a 2 year old son. Different authorities claiming bare knees bring on kidney trouble and other ailments. (Mrs. D. S.)

Answer—If the child finds the mode of dress or undress comfortable, it is healthful. Do not be worried by the old fogies' croakings.

Curious Whim
 Please give me a list of acid-forming foods. (L. M. S.)

Answer—Can't conceive what anyone can make of such a list except to tamper unwisely with diet. However, here is my rough idea of acid forming foods: Lean meats, white bread, fowl, eggs, fish, pork, whole grains, wheat products, peanuts, corn, rice, oysters, scallops, oatmeal—these tend to leave acid ash. Sorrel, rhubarb, spinach and cabbage, gelatin, radishes, certain ovalic-acid-forming berries yield benzoic acid which tends to increase acid formation in the body.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York — See-sawing up and down Broadway. I dropped up to see Roxy, the "Barium of the film show business," who was celebrating the second birthday of his "earthed" of the cinema. . . . And though he seem to me very tired and worn from his many labors, he was as boyishly enthusiastic as ever over the huge plaything which has drawn thirteen million people to its doors. . . . And it struck me as amusing that a man who I given so much effort to amusing so many millions should be called upon to find his chief amusement in that labor. . . . And when I asked him if there was anything else left that would give him a real thrill he said: "Sure, my golf course in less than 80."

And amused by this commentary on the human equation, I stopped at a luncheon for Lupe Velez, the little Mexican girl who was discovered by Douglas Fairbanks and had come to town as a $5,000-a-week star. . . . She was out on display before a hundred critical young men and women of the Broadway cinema world. . . . And her intention seemed to be to kill her. . . . To say nothing of her guests. . . . So all and sundry were treated to such Katzenjammeresque as putting salt and pepper on the critics' Corona Coronas, which may be great fun upon the screen, but didn't elicit so well in life.

Thence to dinner in Yorkville and was saddened by the change; that has come upon the German eating places since last summer. . . . In Yorkville there is a row of cafes, decorated to resemble Tyrolean resorts. . . . And here the waiter's yodel and clink their steins, sing lusty songs and dance to "The Blue Danube." . . . Like so many places that started in colorful simplicity, they have gone a bit Broadwaywise and seemed to me quite too self-conscious. . . . That strained effort to please and sense of working too hard had come upon them.

So, yearning for gypsy music, wandering into the Gypsy Camp. . . . And there was a woman singing songs, who reminded me of Chevalier and Signorita Meller and many other fine artists. . . . So I fell to wondering what she was doing way up in 92nd street when there was none so good in all Broadway at singing such songs. . . . So falling to talking, learned that she had been the original Merry Widow, in Budapest's production, many years ago and that she liked to sing among her own people. . . . Also, she admitted—which is rare for a woman—that she was no longer young. But, an old, an artist, seems to me an artist.

The new dance from Harlem is called "the freezing milk," whatever that is. . . . And night club choruses have gone in for girlish, girlish nationalities. . . . One has a Spaniard, a Syrian, a Russian and a South American. . . . The young lady who danced with a python at Texas Gulman's night resort last season has changed it to a boa constrictor. . . . But then there's no accounting for tastes. . . . At any rate after the change she got a vaudeville contract and will go forth to sober up the boys in other parts of the realm.

MEN'S WEAR

THE BLACK PIGEON

©1929 By NEA Service, Inc. by ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED
RUTH LESTER, secretary, finds the body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, Monday morning, sprawled beneath the airshaft window of his private office. He was shot between one and four Saturday afternoon. McMANN, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects: Ruth, MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, with whom Borden was infatuated; JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's fiancé, whose office is across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

McMann's belief in Jack's guilt is strengthened by the testimony of the elevator boys, MICKY MORAN and OTTO PFLUGER, of BILL COWAN, Jack's friend, who says he heard Jack threaten Borden's life Saturday morning. Detectives are sent out to bring in CLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress and JAKE BAILEY, his bodyguard.

McMann questions BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; ASHIE, his manservant; MINNIE CASSIDY, scrubwoman, who cleans Borden's suite and LETTY MILLER, who cleans Jack's office.

McMann shows Ruth a new-made scar in the brick wall beside Jack's window, also a flattened bullet found on the cement seven feet below. He says Borden fired this bullet too late in self defense at his murderer who "stood in Jack's window." Jack, not yet arrested but shadowed by a detective, goes to Ruth's apartment that evening where they review the events of the day in an attempt to fit bits of the puzzle together. When Ruth mentions Ashie's and Minnie's testimony about the mysterious woman with the "beautiful contralto voice" Jack blushes and starts violently.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XX
"Nothing's the matter," Jack Hayward denied, with peculiar emphasis. "What were you going to say about the woman with the contralto voice?"

"You started and blushed — and you're still blushing," Ruth accused him wonderingly and a little jealously. "I'm sure my description reminded you of someone you know."

"What about this woman with the voice?" Jack evaded, reaching for the poker, so that Ruth could not see his eyes.

The girl started at him, bewildered and hurt, then answered steadily, a little coldly: "You were present this morning when I told Mr. McMann about a telephone call for Mr. Borden at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. I was familiar with the voice calling then, for the woman had telephoned several times during the four months I worked for him. Borden. He always refused to talk with her, though she never gave me her name."

"Saturday morning Mr. Borden came in a minute or two after I had hung up the receiver and when I told him that the woman with the beautiful contralto voice had called he said: 'That voice may sound beautiful to you, but believe me, I'd rather listen to a riveting machine, or words to that effect.'"

"Not enough to hang her on," Jack commented drily, still poking needlessly at the fire.

"Of course, not dear," Ruth answered reasonably, though her voice trembled slightly. "But the story Minnie Cassidy told definitely brings the woman with the contralto voice into the puzzle. While Minnie was cleaning in our offices shortly after half-past one Mr. Borden left his office for a minute or two, asking Minnie to stay until he returned, since he had no key and didn't want her to go away and leave the door unlocked for him. While he was gone the phone rang, Minnie answered, told the woman to hold the wire. When Mr. Borden returned, he asked her to describe the voice of the woman calling and Minnie did so, saying the woman had a lovely, sweet voice, like an alto singer, as she puts it. At first Mr. Borden told her curtly to hang up the receiver then considered a moment and directed her to tell the woman to call again in 15 or 20 minutes."

"Well?" Jack said impatiently, as Ruth paused.

"The woman, so Minnie says, gave her this message for Mr. Borden: 'Tell Mr. Borden that if he is wise, he will talk to me when I call again.'"

Jack shrugged. "Not nearly so definite a threat as I made against the man." Then, as Ruth stared at him with wide, hurt blue eyes, "If you're thinking that the woman with the voice made her final telephone call over my phone, I'm afraid I can't see it. Fifteen or 20 minutes after Minnie's conversation with the lady of the voice, I was in my office myself."

"I hadn't reached that conclusion yet," Ruth said slowly, coldly. "But your reasoning strikes me as a little odd. The woman could not have known that Mr. Borden had a train to make, hence may have delayed a little until she reached the Starbridge Building. Jack, look at me!" she commanded with sudden urgency. "You're probably the world's clumsiest deceiver. It's written all over your face that you know something about this woman. Is this any time to conceal that knowledge from me? It's for your sake, remember?"

Jack shrugged, then laughed ruefully. "I'll never be able to get away with anything, with a wife like you. And may I have a kiss to make up for all I'm going to suffer at your hands in the future? . . . Um, . . . Now, darling, imitate that voice for me as perfectly as you can. I know you're a good mimic. I've heard you take off Borden, Benny, old Minnie Cassidy and poor, timid Letty Miller. Go to it, sweet!"

Ruth laughed, happy again, then she enunciated in a throaty contralto: "Thank you so much, my dear Mr. Hayward! You are too kind!" Then, triumphantly, in her own voice again: "There! You started and blushed again! You can't deny you've heard that voice before — or the one I imitated."

"You're right, of course," Jack admitted reluctantly. "I do know the woman—slightly. She came to my office about two months ago, to inquire about insurance."

"Just picked you out blindly?" Ruth asked skeptically. "Or had someone given her your name?"

"She didn't say and of course I didn't ask," Jack answered a little stiffly. "I asked her into my private office and gave her a lot of information about various types of policies—straight life, 20-year endowment, etc. I didn't think, at the time, that she seemed particularly interested, though she had asked for the information."

"I imagine," Ruth interrupted suddenly, "that she was more interested in the occupant of the office across the airshaft."

"You've hit it again, though I didn't think anything of it at the time," Jack admitted. "Before she left, with her hands full of insurance literature, she stepped to the window and looked out, perhaps towards Borden's office, maybe at Borden himself. I thought she was interested in the pigeons, which were circling about—made some remark to her about them, I believe."

"What was she like—beside her voice?" Ruth asked eagerly.

"Tall and very slender, big, fine dark eyes—sad eyes," Jack answered so unhesitatingly that another pang of jealousy shot through the girl's heart. "About 35, I imagine. A good deal of makeup, but a skillful, artistic job. Good clothes, but just a little shabby and elegant sort of shabbiness."

"She evidently made a great impression on you," Ruth could not help remarking. "I suppose you remember her name, too?"

"You're delicious when you're angry or jealous," Jack laughed and kissed the tips of her fingers. "She did make deep impression on me, because I thought she had the most tragic face I'd ever seen. That's why I hesitated to say a word which might involve her in this nasty business. No man would want to add another bitter line to that tragic face. Her name was Martha Manning."

"Miss of Mrs.?" Ruth persisted.

"She didn't say, but I addressed her as Miss Manning until she made inquiries about a trust fund's being made of the insurance, if she took it out, in favor of her six-year-old son. Then I called her Mrs. Manning and she did not correct me."

Ruth considered, her eyes growing wider and wider. Then, slowly, "Miss Manning, Jack, and the boy was Harry Borden's illegitimate son. I feel absolutely sure of that. . . . What was her address?" she added suddenly.

"Some little hotel—let me think. . . . Oh, yes, the Acropolis Hotel. I wrote her, asking if she had made up her mind as to the kind of insurance she wanted to take out, and she did not reply. She did come in again, however, and told me that it was quite useless for her to consider any kind of insurance on her life—that she had been to her own physician and he had told her she was in an advanced stage of tuberculosis. And again—she stood at my window, looking out. . . . I felt damned sorry for her," Jack added, in a low voice.

"Frankly, I felt sorry for her, too," Ruth said slowly. "And then she told him, briefly, the story that Borden's manservant had told Detective Sergeant McMann—how the woman with the beautiful contralto voice had come to Borden's apartment, gained entrance by watching her chance, and had been knocked half senseless either by Borden himself or by Jake Bailey, his bodyguard."

"Motive?" Jack commented, but without triumph. "Now as to opportunity. Let us suppose she came to the Starbridge Building Saturday afternoon, before calling Borden on the telephone as he had asked her to, through Minnie. But why come to my office to make the call, even if she did remember that it was directly opposite Borden's and that she could see his face, as she talked to him?"

"Maybe she realized that you were interested in her, would go out of your way to do her a good turn. Perhaps she intended to appeal to you to help her plead her case with Borden," Ruth suggested hesitatingly. "She found your door unlocked, thought you were in, and entered. Once inside, she took the liberty of using your phone, although you were not there, quarreled with Borden—and shot him through your window."

"But how did she know I had a pistol?" Jack objected.

"You've just said you gave her a lot of insurance literature," Ruth pointed out eagerly. "You keep stacks of it in the bottom drawer of your desk. Why couldn't she have seen the pistol while you were searching for the printed matter you wanted to give her?"

"Possibly, but not highly probable," Jack conceded. "But—if she killed him from my office, how can you account for the disappearance of your gun? Miss Manning could hardly have entered the dead man's locked office, would have had no reason to do so, in the first place."

"Then maybe she induced Borden, by threats of some sort, to grant her an appointment, told him she was in the building and would be right up, then armed herself with your gun, went to his office, was admitted because he was expecting her, found he was armed too, and shot him just as he was about to shoot her. Borden's bullet going wild—out of the window. How's that?" Ruth concluded triumphantly.

"Fine," Jack smiled mirthlessly. "except for one or two minor details. Why should she take the gun with which he had tried to kill her? Why close the window?"

"But Rita Dubois insists that the window was still open when she was there between two-ten and two-thirty," Ruth pointed out.

"And Rita also insists that Borden was alive," Jack reminded her. "If Rita is telling the truth, our whole case against poor Martha Manning topples, unless we conclude that Borden told Miss Manning not to come until half-past two or even later—realizing, as he did, that she had already made him miss his train, and that he would have to deal with Rita, between train time—2:15—and 2:30. But if that's the case, where was Martha Manning after she concluded her telephone quarrel with Borden at 2:10, and until half-past two? In my office all that time? So far as I know, no one has told of seeing a stranger on the seventh floor all afternoon, and neither Otto Pfluger nor Micky Moran, said anything about bringing such a woman to the seventh floor."

"She could have walked up, of course — part of the way, at least," Ruth offered tentatively.

"But—Letty went into your office for the second time to clean them as half-past two. I'm sure she would have told Mr. McMann if she had seen anyone coming out of your office or in the corridor. But, Jack, there's no getting around it: some woman, Martha Manning, or some other woman, was in Borden's office Saturday—besides Rita, Mrs. Borden, Minnie and myself. I mean, for, as McMann puts it, she left her calling card on the glass panel in the door between the private office and the outer office — three clear fingerprints."

"The only fingerprints on the glass panel, which the window-washer had cleaned late Friday afternoon. Maybe she had a key to Mr. Borden's office—but no, that's impossible, for Mr. Borden had the lock changed after I started to work for him only four months ago, and all that time he has refused even to talk over the phone with the woman of the contralto voice. . . . Oh!" she sighed suddenly, and slumped in a pathetic little heap. "I'm so ghastly tired I can't think."

"You're going to bed, darling," Jack commanded, contrition and compassion in his voice and eyes. "I could do with a little sleep myself, and it's a shame to keep my poor shadow standing out there in the cold so long. He'll be all the better for taking his dog" for a walk on the leash. You're going to the scene of the crime tomorrow morning, I suppose?"

"Me?" Ruth laughed shakily. "Why, I'm going to take charge of the investigation—after I've done one errand—with my own shadow trailing me. . . . No, I won't tell you what I intend to do. Go alone. I want to—pray, and then to sleep. Good night, my darling. I love you."

Soups Are High With Food Value

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

SOUP, soup, beautiful soup, soups of the evening, beautiful soup!

While the Mock Turtle was probably stinging about his own particular brand of soup, when we stop to weigh the many virtues of soup in general we must agree with him. There is no better way of serving

VEGETABLE CREAM SOUP
One cup sifted vegetable, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, pepper.
Melt butter, stir in flour and cook until bubbling. Add milk and cook until thick and smooth. Season with salt and pepper and add sifted vegetable with its juice. Cook two or three minutes to make very hot and serve.

ing vegetables and milk to little children than in a cream soup.

A soup made from milk and vegetables is highly nutritious. Milk is the most nearly perfect of all foods lacking mainly iron, and is used as the basis for all cream soups. The vegetable chosen can supply iron, making this particular vegetable cream soup almost a complete food.

The mother who has difficulty in persuading her child to drink his necessary amount of milk will find these cream soups of great value. Laboratory tests have shown that from 15 to 60 per cent of the food value of various vegetables dissolves into the water in which the vegetables are cooked. More than this a larger percentage of the minerals is lost in the water. So every time we use this water in a soup we have preserved these mineral salts for our own needs.

Vitamins also are lost to some degree in the water in which vegetables are cooked, but if this water is saved and used in a soup we are furnished with this nutrient so essential to good health.

Cream soups are simply made, the addition of butter and cream making them rich in fat as needed. Seasoning is important. A suspicion of onion, a bit of celery and a mincing of parsley often do much for delicately flavored vegetables. The seasoning must be used to accentuate the natural flavor of the vegetable, not hide it.

THREE BELTS
A giraffe made of three separate belts of grosgrain ribbon matching a flat crepe frock is very effective. The belts have identical buckles and are joined only at the sides where narrow bits of hand-work form the union.

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE bunch were filled with keen delight. "Twas great to see the broad daylight, when they had been lost in a cave for days, and days, and days. 'Oh, look,' cried Clowzy, 'down below is where I'd really like to go. I see some lovely fields of green where cattle likely graze.'

"Just think! If we can find a cow, we'll get a pail of milk somehow, and when we'll hunt for berries. They will make a dandy meal. We haven't had a bite I guess, for many days. I'm in distress. I never realized before how hungry one can feel."

"Sometimes," snapped Scouty, "you are rude. You never think of a thing but food. I'd like to see that valley too, but not to merely eat. The grass looks tempting. I'll admit, and that's just where I'd like to sit. To loaf around for 'bout an hour would be a wondrous treat."

A coal man then spoke up and said, "Well, come on, lads, let's go ahead. There is no sense in staying here. Who's game to follow me?" "I am," yelled Coppy, "right away."

And then he stopped and shouted, "Say! How we are going to get down there is what I cannot see."

The little coal man loudly roared, "Leave that to me, boys! Hop aboard our funny little cave car and we'll have a speedy trip. If you will all hang on real tight, I know that all will be all right. Don't try to climb up on the edge or you will likely slip."

So, when they all were sitting tight, the coal man pushed with all his might, and down the hill the coal car went. It almost brought a scare. But, Mister Coal Man had the knack of keeping it upon the track, and not a thing went wrong as they went sailing through the air.

THE NEW Saint Sinner.

By Anne Austin

Harry Blaine stepped gingerly over the threshold of the Hathaway living room, feeling exactly like a foot-horrible tourist who insists upon peering over the crater of a volcano scheduled to erupt at any minute.

After greeting Faith rather absently and reassuring her about Tony's condition—for Faith had been the only one who sensed that the girl had almost fainted—the reporter took a seat on the big couch near Crystal's wheelchair and surveyed the apparently harmless scene with a frown of concentration.

There was George Pruitt, talking to Crystal again.

"I've been telling Faith that I want to paint a portrait of you," he said. "You've made my fingers itch for a brush for the first time in months."

"You want to paint a portrait of me?" Crystal answered. "Why?"

Before George Pruitt could answer Harry Blaine saw that he was not the only shameless cave-dropper of what should have been a private interview. Cherry Johnson, dragging Alan Beardsley by the hand, had come up behind Crystal's wheelchair. Even though he was not at all under her spell, Harry Blaine could not help paying Cherry the tribute of a long, measuring glance of admiration.

Cherry forestalled George Pruitt's answer to Crystal's wondering. "Why?" Her musical laugh tinkled out. "Why, Cray, darling? Don't you really know why? It's because dear old George has fallen in love with you. He always pays his lady-loves the tribute of painting their portraits. Sweet of him, isn't it? Faith was so flattered."

Harry Blaine was caught fast in the paralysis that gripped the whole room, for Cherry's high voice had penetrated to every ear. The deathlike silence held for a full minute, and was broken by the swish of Faith's long tulle skirt as she brushed past the couch on her way to her sister.

So this was the eruption which Tony Tarver had foretold, Harry Blaine thought, the blood pounding hotly in his cheeks. Rather a minor eruption, but beastly—absolutely beastly. Was the little red-headed devil so insanely vain of her beauty that she could not endure that the slightest tribute should be paid to any other woman?

"Bedtime, Crystal dear," Faith was saying, her shame-flushed face bent over the girl in the wheelchair.

"I am tired," Crystal acknowledged faintly. Then, "Thank you, George," she added noncommittally, as Faith began to wheel her away.

Cherry appeared to be entirely unaware of the fendishness of her behavior. Lifting her beautiful and apparently innocent little face to Alan Beardsley, she commanded eagerly: "Come! You really must see the portrait that George painted of Faith. As a Madonna, with MY baby in her arms. It's in the sun parlor."

As she peered her husband, Nils Jonsson, dragging Alan Beardsley by the hand, Cherry laughed—a shrill, excited sound—that made Harry Blaine's scalp prickle with foreboding. "The little fool!"

FUR LININGS DETACHABLE FOR SPRING

If one dresses for the unstable March and April weather nothing is more useful than the leather coats. Many of these are furnished. Gray astrakhan is a favorite for this purpose. Many coats now have detachable fur linings so that the same lining may be worn with a leather, a satin or a woolen coat. Many of the leather coats are short but others are of the three-quarter length.

FASHION HINTS

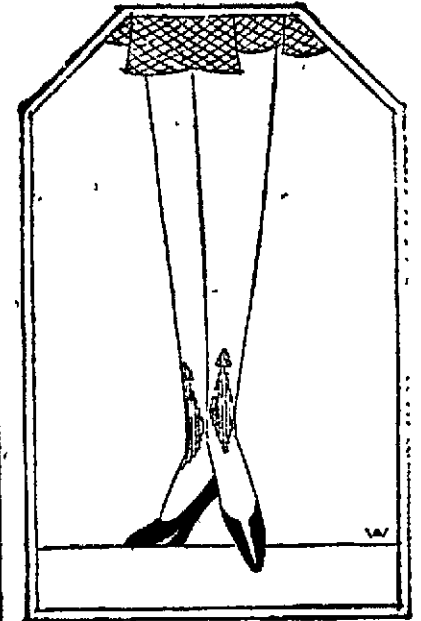

NORMAL WAIST
Tuck-in blouses are emphasizing the normal waistline. A bright blue flat crepe frock, with a two-ruffle yoke, is shaped princess line to mark the normal waistline.

GINGHAM BLOUSE
A red kasha ensemble suit has a tuck-in blouse of red and white gingham with organdy collar and cuffs. The skirt's yoke is lined with the gingham.

TRIANGULAR PURSE
The modernistic theme is pursued in a Parisian bag of black and white kid which is joined to form a triangular shaped purse. The clasp is of ivory.

FUR JACKET
The short fur jacket is exceedingly good for early spring, especially if lined with the colorful silk of the frock it tops.

Fashion Plaques

A NEW silk stocking for spring has a geometric design posed at the front of the ankle.

Household Hints

CUSTARD HINT
If you intend to have watery custard, placing a piece of bread on top of custard before you bake it will help remedy this. The oven's even heat is needed, also to get a smooth, delicious custard.

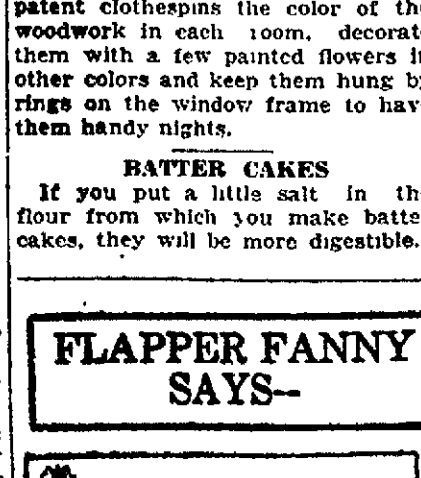

EGG STAINS
When your family eats eggs regularly for breakfast and the silver is stained constantly as a result, try keeping an aluminum pot of salt and soda solution with water near by. Drop all breakfast silver into it when clearing the table and by the time you wash dishes, the discoloration will have disappeared.

CLEANSING FLOWERS
When the artificial flowers in your wardrobe need cleaning, put them in a preserving jar of some good cleansing fluid, screw the lid down tightly and shake the whole jar gently. When clean put in another jar of fresh fluid and rise in the same way. You will behold them restored to their pristine beauty and freshness.

PINNED-UP CURTAINS
If you pin back your glass curtains at night, they will last longer than if they flap against the screen or out into the night air. Paint patent clothespins the color of the woodwork in each room, decorate them with a few painted flowers in other colors and keep them hung by rings on the window frame to have them handy nights.

BATTER CAKES
If you put a little salt in the flour from which you make batter cakes, they will be more digestible.

Flattering

THE STYLE in geometric print in silk crepe features the slender wrap-around skirt falling in soft drapes at side. The bodice with flat-terling jabot frills terminates at side waistline with ornamental buckle, and is completed with scalloped linen vestee. It can be worn for street or afternoon. Georgette crepe, flat silk crepe, canton crepe, and crepe de chine are also suitable for this charmingly youthful model.

THE PATTERN No. 2781 is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 20, 22, 24 and 42 inches bust and is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew. A Picture Chart is included which shows in detail the entire construction of garment in Picture Lessons, which simplifies the making, and saves time for the experienced sewer.

BRIMS ON SIDES ONLY, HAT FOIBLE

One can hardly imagine Cleopatra in a small hat but it is evident that some of the smart milliners have been to Egypt. The Egyptian head-dress made familiar on scores of tombs and monuments has resulted in the production of hats with brims on the sides only. This type is most becoming to some profiles but the women who have not Egyptian profiles will still stick to the hats with brims in front and rear as well as on the sides.

Rheumatism Overcome by Walking

It has been found that an especially constructed and treated pair of heel plates (one zinc and one copper) placed in the shoes of a sufferer, quickly rid the wearer of rheumatic pains, sciatica and stiff joints, as well as tones up the system in general. Thus the sufferer literally "walks" his way to health. Experiments in hundreds of cases prove these heel plates to be a boon to the sufferer in most severe cases of rheumatism. Smith's Eureka Co., 175 Lee St., McKenzie, Tenn., is so anxious to prove their statement that they are willing to send any sufferer their liberal trial offer. Write them today. adv.

HIP YOKES ARE ALMOST THE RULE

New York—It is not how you feel that counts. It's how you look. That is why smart women have already begun to do their shopping for spring and summer. The clothes they are buying show little change in line from winter models. The hips are still closely swathed and hip yokes are so numerous as to be almost the rule instead of the exception. Length of skirts is about the same with a caught-up movement in front.

STUDENTS PRESENT OPERA "PINAFORE" WITH MUCH FINISH

Audience of Approximately 400 Sees Play at Roosevelt School

With a great deal of finish and a professional interpretation of the principal character roles, the comic opera "Pinafore," was presented at Roosevelt junior high school before an audience of about 400 Friday evening. The chorus work was done by the Roosevelt glee clubs, and character parts were taken by students of Lawrence Conservatory of Music, with the exception of the role of the Boatwain, which was carried by Cyrus Trittin, a Roosevelt student.

The final scenes of both acts were particularly outstanding, and showed the culmination of months of training by the boys and girls. Solos which brought a great deal of applause were "Fair Moon," by Franklin LeFevre, "The Hours Creep On Apace," by Miss Hazel Gloe and "I'm Called Little Buttercup," by Harriett Melnich. Character parts which were unusually well done were Dick Deadeye by William Dahl, and Josephine by Miss Hazel Gloe. Others who played their roles in a skillful fashion were David Scouler as Sir Joseph Porter, Franklin LeFevre, Captain Corcoran, Henry Tanharkel, Ralph Backstraw, Tom Tucker and Bob Beckett, Leslie Johnson, Hebe, Miss Viola Hoelsy, and Little Buttercup, Miss Harriett Melnich.

The story of the opera is the love of the captain's daughter, Josephine, for Ralph Backstraw, a sailor on board ship, and the objections of Captain Corcoran to the affair. It later develops that Backstraw is more than a common sailor, and the play ends in typical dramatic fashion.

The production was directed by Dr. Earl L. Baker. Misses Irene Bidwell and Evaline Bell were pianists, Miss Louella Gribble was dramatic coach, and stage assistants were Hayden Owen and Lavon Dahlke.

VETS SHOULD NOT ASK LEGAL HELP IN CLAIMS

Appleton world war veterans who intend to apply for claims with the United States veterans bureau in Washington need not seek aid of attorneys in presenting their claims, according to Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the bureau.

The settlement act contains a clause setting a definite amount for attorney fees but the bureau has come across instances where the fee has exceeded that set by law. The bureau has said that it is looking after claims that legal help is unnecessary. According to Gen. Hines the bureau is handling about 100 claims a day and of the 8,560 claims received, 6,000 have been adjusted.

MANY APPLETON PEOPLE OFFER HOME TO ORPHAN

That Appleton people are interested in the welfare of the needy and deserving was illustrated Friday and Saturday when County Judge Fred V. Heinemann was swamped with calls, telephone and personal, offering a home for the 14-year-old Appleton girl whom he is attempting to place in good surroundings.

The calls were the result of a story appearing in Friday's Post-Crescent telling of the facts in the case and appealing to the public to come to the aid of the judge. The girl is a freshman in high school and has been staying with her sister and brother-in-law. She does not get along well with the latter, however. Judge Heinemann is seeking a home for the girl where she can help with the housework or care for children and also attend school. He would prefer to place the girl in charge of some woman who would mother her and help her solve her problems.

BASEBALL GAME PEPS UP QUIZ IN ELECTRICITY

A quiz in electricity is one thing and a baseball game is another, but Friday morning at McKinley junior high school they became one and the same thing. The electricity class was divided into two baseball teams and instead of a straight question-and-answer examination, the pupils played a game of baseball, pitching questions at one another, making home runs on some answers and striking out on others. There were foul balls, fly balls and bunts, but after the game was over the class knew a lot more about electricity—and baseball. The game was conducted by Donald T. Bowker in the absence of the regular instructor, Walter Fox.

PIERCE GETS $2,054 OUT OF COURT VERDICT

L. A. Pierce, Appleton, is to receive $2,054.14 damages from the Wilson Construction company, of Appleton, as the result of a decision by circuit court jury Wednesday afternoon.

The damage suit was started by Pierce, who asked approximately $4,000 which he claimed was due on an excavating contract he had held with Wilson. Wilson counterclaimed for about the same amount charging Pierce had failed to complete the job and thereby caused him that much damage.

The parties agreed on stipulation, that Pierce was entitled to $2,787 for his work but the question of Wilson's damages was disputed and submitted to the jury. The jury found that Wilson should receive $533.20 for the uncompleted portion of the excavating job and $200 for the loss he suffered as a result of Pierce's delay. Thus Pierce really won the case with a verdict of $2,054.14.

KOHLER TAX BILL IS EXPLAINED BY SENATOR

Madison —(AP)— Senator Oscar H. Morris, Milwaukee, issued a statement in which he commented on the Kohler tax bill as follows:

The object of the bill is to clarify and bring the state law into close conformity to the federal law as possible, thus bringing about a greater and easier understanding of the same for the taxpayer.

The bill contemplates a new start, beginning with the income of the year 1929 and fiscal years ending in 1929. The tax payable in 1929 will be computed on the three year average basis under the present law, the provision for the increased credits, or exemptions, however, will take place immediately upon passage, the individual taxpayer thus getting the benefit of the income tax payable this year.

COMMON STOCK IS FAVORITE BUY IN INVESTMENT FIELD

United States Steel Corporation to Substitute Stocks for Bonds

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
New York—Substitution of stocks for bonds as planned by the United States Steel Corporation is an operation well-timed. Probably never in the history of American finance has the common stock enjoyed the popularity in the investment field as it does today. It goes without saying that the new stock will be fully subscribed.

Another illustration of the vogue of the common stock is the investment trust, a large proportion of the funds of which go into stocks on the theory that if diversification is large enough the risk becomes negligible. For a long time trustees have been limited, sometimes by law and sometimes by consent, to bonds as investments, excluding stocks. This has resulted in lower income to the beneficiaries of the trust but, as was supposed, in a higher degree of safety. In any case there seemed no way for an individual trust to be protected by diversification unless it was extremely large.

One of the most conservative and strongest of New York trust companies has now adopted a plan designed to apply modern investment standards to trustee funds. It is proposed to combine a large number of individual trusts in one fund which can be administered as a whole and because of its size can be invested in a wide diversity of securities.

This is sure to be of great service to the small investor. It is unnecessary to go into details of the plan here. Adequate safeguards have been set up and the idea looks like a distinct advance in investment practice. One can only hope the plan depends in the last analysis on the experience and integrity of the administrator. It will succeed only when the management is in the hands of an institution of the high standing as the one referred to.

Probably there will be others entering this field. The standing investor must look first of all to the quality of the management.

LABOR COLLEGE PLANS CONCLUDING SESSION

Plans were completed for the last session of the Appleton Labor College on April 28 at the regular weekly meeting of the College Thursday evening at the senior high school. A lunch at 9 o'clock at the Hotel Northern will follow the debate. Kurt A. Kolitzke gave a report on arrangements for the affair.

Discussion was held on plans for the Labor College next year and the scheduled program was dispensed with to hear the speeches of the debate team. Kurt Kolitzke, Adolphus Guyer and Karl D. Jahnke, make up the squad. Orlando Sherburne was elected presiding officer of the evening.

MOVE STARTED TO PROHIBIT SMOKING "FAGS" IN OREGON

League Attempts to Place Proposal on Ballot in 1930

BY RICHARD RUMMEL
Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association

Portland, Ore. — Cigarette puffers of Oregon learned with some amazement, of the attempt being made in this state to take their "fags" away from them. The Anti-Cigarette League of Oregon, which has taken the initiative in the endeavor to keep low residents of the Commonwealth from reaching for a smoke instead of a sweet, is a youthful organization, hitherto virtually unknown.

The exact action of the league thus far has been to file papers at the state capital in an initiative move, meant to place on the ballot at the general election in November, 1930, a proposed constitutional amendment forbidding the manufacture, importation, possession, advertising, sale or distribution of cigarettes, cigarette papers or materials in this state.

To place the proposal on the ballot the league must obtain 16,000 signatures, which its officers admit is a big job but which they think can be done. Persons who have worked in anti-cigarette movements in the state for years are inclined to believe the action is premature. The man on the street doesn't think he will in the near future have to walk more than the advertised mile for his favorite brand.

John H. Perry, president of the league, admits serious doubts as to the successful outcome of this first attempt to outlaw the most popular form of smoke, but his doubts are not lessening his ardor. "I think this will call our work to the attention of the people and get them to thinking along our line," he said. The league which has been in existence about six months, promoting lectures and advertising its purpose, is a small group, made up largely of Eugene, Ore. men. Perry, its president, is a garage man and its field representative is a barber. Perry asserts that no interests are behind the group's efforts and that the fight against the tax has no connection with the prohibition question.

Serious-minded about their crusade, the leaguers are paying little attention to those who, satisfied, say it can't be done. "Whether there's a cough in a carload or not, they say, the cigarette must go."

Mr. and Mrs. William Scherer, W. Prospect-ave, have returned from Glencoe, Ill., where they visited for a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Schuetter. Mrs. Schuetter is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scherer. The Schuetters called Saturday of this week from New York for Europe where they will spend two months. Joan Schuetter returned to this city with her grandparents and will remain here until her parents return.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

"I want the letter head to make it quite obvious that it's a million dollar concern without actually stating that."

Cooks Know Their Onions, But How The Spuds Suffer

Madison—(UP)—Most cooks know their onions, but through careless preparation of potatoes they unknowingly waste as high as 30 percent of their food value, according to food experts at the University of Wisconsin.

The potato contains valuable protein, minerals and vitamins in addition to its starch so that it need not be forbidden food for persons on a reducing diet provided it is properly balanced with milk, meat, fish or eggs, experts say. In comparing the value of the potato with such cereal foods as wheat, oatmeal and corn, scientists have found it has better muscle repairing content; it is high in alkaline salts; fair in iron; low in vitamin A, as are cereals; fair in vitamin B, but high in vitamin C; that it contains one of the easiest starches to digest. Vitamin A is important at it gives resistance to infections. Vitamin B determines the quality of appetite thus avoiding food nutrition conditions, while Vitamin C, of which the potato is rich, prevents scurvy.

NEW YORK SOCIETY IS WORRIED OVER MENS TARDINESS

Leagues Issue Questionnaires to Young Men to Determine Views

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright 1929, by the Consolidated Press Association

New York—The Biblical parable of the man who tried to give a dinner and found the guests answering with elaborate excuses or just not showing up at all, finds an echo in the present sad state of New York society. The social disintegration since the days of Ward McAllister, with changing times and manners, finds many guests A. W. O. L., or else too late to help much, and many hostesses afflicted with new and expensive frustrations.

This might be borne, or at least offset by punitive measures, but back of it is the sinister fact that the forces of modern social life are working toward the economic isolation of the debilitate. It is this which has recruited dowagers, matrons and the debutantes themselves in support of a campaign just started by the junior league and the parents' league to make dinner, dance and luncheon guests keep their engagements and arrive on time.

Here is where the factor of economic isolation comes in—possibly a rather remote reference in this discussion but none the less important. The present high cost of diversions in the upper strata is rapidly lowering the social eligibility of the young business man, living on a salary and chained to a desk, no matter how big his salary may be.

It is increasing the eligibility of the man who has had time to pluck a few millions, or who has an inherited fortune and to whom a ten-dollar cover charge is something like a cigar coupon. But, as it works out, the boss-ridden youngster who has to be on the job early the next day is the prompt and dependable guest and it is the more leisurely and socially desirable youth who dallies and evades and who is quite apt to be either truant or tardy.

The obvious explanation of this is that the more desirable bachelors, having nothing to do till tomorrow, have got into the habit of doing it. Decentralization of potable liquids, necessitating more movements here and there, the scattering of the mansions of the haut monde, instead of their being all together in midtown, as they used to be, the lure of night clubs and supper clubs and the coming of the automobile all have tended to make eligible bachelorhood more roving and elusive.

New and brash money crashing in, sports, quaint drinking customs and all sorts of disturbing persons and events have all but wrecked the old New York society.

Within the last three years, many New York matrons have sent their daughters to Boston, Philadelphia, or Washington for extended periods after their coming out here. The mother of one of these young women frankly explained her views on the general subject of the increasing troubles of debutantes.

"It is becoming virtually impossible for your young man in New York society to know the right kind of young men," she said.

YOUNG MEN SCARCE: "The cost of any kind of social life is now so great that many responsible young men, just getting started in a business or profession, can not participate—or, at any rate, if they do, they can not be considered eligible in the fullest sense of the word. Young men who might participate, and who have sufficient means, are becoming unusually lax and are remiss, not only in keeping engagements, but in the simplest requirements of good behavior. As a result, debutantes are thrown more and more into the society of middle-aged men, who have gained their fortunes and who have had sufficient training in an older and better social code not to fail to keep a dinner engagement."

"We of the older generation are alarmed over this condition. Girls should know young men of their own age. My own daughters were brought out in Philadelphia, where there is far less laxity in social customs than there is here, and where young people are not continually driven to the society of their elders."

The junior league and the parents' league have joined in a questionnaire being sent out to about 2,000 young men, including many Harvard, Yale and Princeton undergraduates and alumni, propounding the following questions:

"Are you in favor of having dinners on time?"

Have us remove the scale, sediment, rust, etc. from your radiator NOW and have a properly cooled engine this season. An expert inspection and cleaning means a watertight radiator that will function RIGHT if we do the work.

Hardy Borders Replacing Old Time Flower Beds

EDITOR'S NOTE: Romaine B. Ware, national known garden authority, today concludes the series of twelve articles on "Planning and Planting for Spring" which he has written for The Appleton Post-Crescent and NEA Service.

BY ROMAINE B. WARE
The hardy or herbaceous border is with doubt the most popular form of gardening in the home grounds today. It has taken the place of the old flower "beds" throughout the country and is a great improvement over them.

The first thing to be considered in planning a hardy border is to provide a background. This may be a mass of shrubs, a hedge or a fence covered with vines. In England, where the hardy border originated, they often are paced with a brick or stone wall as a background, almost admirable situation. A hardy border should be wide enough to provide for a goodly succession of bloom. Six to ten feet is not too wide and some of the finest examples are fourteen feet wide. They generally are located at the outer edges of the lawn area where they are the decorative features of the place.

The soil preparation for a hardy border should be very thorough, because the plants are set in it for a period of several years. If the foundation is not well laid the plants will suffer for want of food. They are crowded close together and have to get their food from a very limited space in competition with many other things. Not only must they be well provided for in the beginning, but they will need to be fertilized each year if they are to grow right.

The hardy border does not necessarily exclude the lowly annuals as they are needed for summer bloom. In mid-summer there is always a season when there is little bloom among the hardy plants and then the annuals are invaluable. Too, you will need the spring flowering bulbs to give you great masses of color in the spring.

The bulbs should be planted in masses of a dozen to a hundred either all of one kind or in mixture. Avoid straight lines and geometrical figures. They belong to the old school of gardening and are out of place in these times. The bulbs may be succeeded by annuals planted right over them, thus getting two seasons of bloom from the same space.

How To Play Bridge

BY MILES C. WALKER

MR. WORK'S POINTERS CONTRACT BRIDGE

Yesterday's article considered some features of "demand" two-bids, and another point concerning them will be illustrated today. One requirement is that if two be bid originally on a four-card suit, the hand must contain strength in three suits. Take the following hand:

7-5-2
10-8-4-2
9-7-5-3
AK
	SOUTH
AKQJ
AKQJ
AK
7-5-3

Under the demand system, South (the Dealer) could not bid more than one because he has strength in only two suits. Over a bid of one Spade, North would have to pass because one Ace (even a singleton) is insufficient strength to jump a one-bid although sufficient to jump a two-bid under any system. It will be noted that with a normal distribution of the adverse trumps (Spades) and a Club led (the lead to be expected), Declarer readily would make game.

"Will you arrive punctually at the hour set?"

"Will you get to dances on time?"

"If you accept a dinner invitation, will you really attend?"

"Are you in favor of early lunch-dances so that afternoon appointments can be met?"

"Will you take pains to arrive on time and not leave before luncheon is finished?"

But if South bid two Spades and North three, South would bid four Hearts and North would not disturb that bid.

To change the subject: I do not like to be required to have all four suits stopped for a bid of Two No Trumps, or to have all four suits stopped twice in order to bid three No Trumps. Take this hand:

AK
AK
AK
AK
AK
AK
AK
AK

It has eight sure high-card tricks and four more probable tricks; it counts 26, but if hampered by a practice which forbids three No Trumps unless the four suits are all stopped twice the partner might not have a jump for two No Trumps, and yet with a normal break in both Minors a Small Slam would be made. I would think it a crime to bid less than three No Trumps with this hand.

Again I emphasize that I believe the natural system is the best; it is easy to learn, avoids misunderstandings and in the long run will produce the best results.

NATIONAL ORIGINS QUOTAS PROCLAIMED

President Hoover Acts in Obedience to Law Distasteful to Him

Washington—(AP)—Bowing to his belief that the chief executive should be the first to obey the law even though he doesn't like it, President Hoover has proclaimed the new national origins quotas of the restrictive immigration act, effective July 1.

At the same time, it has been made clear that he is hopeful that congress will act at the special session beginning next month to defer for another year operation of the national origins provision, which he opposes, so that the whole question may be reviewed at the regular session in December.

"The attorney general has advised me that in failure of congress to suspend action, it is now mandatory upon me under the immigration act to issue the proclamation establishing 'national origins' as the basis of immigration quotas," the president said in reply to questions of the press Friday. Just before the proclamation was issued.

"The proclamation must be issued prior to April 1 and will be issued at once. It will go into effect on July 1 unless action is taken by congress in the meantime. While I am strongly in favor of restricted and selected immigration, I have opposed the national origins basis."

"I therefore, naturally dislike the duty of issuing the proclamation and installing the new basis, but the president of the United States must be the first to obey the law."

Immediately after the proclamation was issued, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican house leader, said that if a measure deferring operation of the national origins provision should be adopted by the senate it would be considered in the house before July 1. Senate leaders were silent regarding the proposal, however.

The president favors a continuance of the present quotas, which are based on the 1890 census.

The proclamation said that the new quotas fixed by it were available only for persons eligible to citizenship in the United States and admissible under the immigration law. The new basis would reduce by more than 10,000 annually the number of persons admissible. Under it 153,714 would be admitted yearly, instead of 164,647 under the 1890 scale.

Kimberly Club Goes Into Finals Of State Cage Meet

COATED PAPER "5" FAILS TO SURVIVE IN SECOND ROUND

Winners of Afternoon Games Will Meet for Title Saturday Night

Green Bay—(P)—Cage teams of Kimberly, Racine, Delavan and Madison will fight it out here Saturday for the championship in the Y. M. C. A. state amateur basketball tournament. The squads won in the first round of games played Friday and will compete in the semi-finals and finals Saturday.

The Kimberly club got into the finals by winning from the La Crosse Reims in a close game, 31 to 27. The Koffee-Kups of Delavan triumphed over the Huxfords of Green Bay, 38 to 28, to give them a place in the semi-finals. The Douglas Flowers of Racine gained a place in the semi-final round by trimming the Antigo normal team, 35 to 12.

In the other second round game the Madison Kennedy Fair team exhibited a brilliant offense in the first period to win over the Appleton Coated Paper quintet, 31 to 24. The Appleton team won the tournament last year.

In the first round games Friday, 12 teams took part. Six were eliminated.

Saturday afternoon the Kennedy Dairies will go up against the Koffee-Kups, and the Kimberly Club will take on the Douglas Flowers. The winners of the two tilts will clash Saturday night for the state championship.

Results of the first round games: Thornton American Legion, 26; Appleton Coated Papers, 28; Huxfords, Green Bay, 27; Simons Aces, Kenosha, 22; Koffee Kups, Delavan, 41; Hanson's Triangles, Eau Claire, 29; Cressie Reims, 23; Green Bay, 31; 26; Kimberly Club, 38; Rotisch Paper Makers, 20; Douglas Flowers, 23; Fond du Lac Hi-Y, 20.

TWIN BOXERS COP DECISIONS FRIDAY

Perlick Boys Are Winners of Double Windup at Milwaukee

Milwaukee—(P)—Participating in a double windup, the Perlick Twins of Michigan Friday night fought their way to clean victories over Solly Seaman of New York, and Irwin Berndt, of Milwaukee, in eight round contests that went the full route.

Herman Perlick carried the fight to the veteran New Yorker to win a margin, while his brother, Henry, in the final contest decisively whipped Berndt, Milwaukee protege of Richie Mitchell.

The fast foot work and boring tactics of Herman Perlick gave him four rounds against his more experienced opponent who finally overcame to win three rounds. The eighth was a draw.

Perlick weighed 135 3-4; Seaman 134 3-4.

The other Michigan twin worked on Berndt with a lightning right that gradually took its toll of Berndt's strength and found him wobbling at the end of the eighth in which he gamely withstood terrific punishment. Berndt's best rounds were the second and sixth. The others were won by Perlick. Perlick weighed 136 1-2; Berndt 133.

ONE MIDWEST TEAM IN ACADEMY FINALS

St. Johns Cadets Must Come Through to Uphold Central States

Madison—(P)—The mid-west's last grasp for the academy basketball championship, which it has held since the tournament's inception in 1926, lays in the hands of St. John's Military academy of Delaford. Two eastern and one southern team are the other five in semi-final play here. The tournament closes Saturday night.

John's will oppose Cook Academy of Montour Falls, N. Y., which defeated Illinois Military Academy, Appleton, Ill., 29 to 22 in a quarter final Friday night. The Delaford Cadets had a bye.

The other semi-final game, which will be played Saturday will bring the Manlius, N. Y. school and the Terrill Prep of Dallas, Tex., together.

DUNDEE DROPPED BY N. B. A. AS CHAMPION

Chicago—Joe Dundee will no longer be recognized as world's welterweight champion by the National Boxing association, President Paul Pahn ruled Friday. Dundee failed to meet the requirements of the N. B. A., which demanded that he sign for a title bout, with a logical contender, by March 21.

Sammy Mandell, lightweight ruler, was granted an additional three months to defend his title on the plea that he was recovering from an injury suffered in the ring.

CHOPPY WATERS HALT GAR WOOD'S QUEST

Miami Beach, Fla.—Unfavorable winds and choppy waters today caused Gar Wood to postpone until Saturday his attempt to break his own world's straightaway speed record for motorboats. He probably will make the attempt to lower his 93.8 miles per hour record Saturday morning.

Omaha—Tommy Grogan, Omaha, knocked out Russic Leroy, Fargo, N. D., (12).

PRESBYTERY PLANS
 STUDY OF DIVORCE

Will Propose to Make Infidelity Only Grounds for Legal Separation

Divorce will be one of the important questions to be voted upon at the spring meeting of the Winneba-go presbytery, of which Memorial Presbyterian church of this city is a member. The meeting will be held early in April, but the place of meeting has not yet been announced.

As the law of the church now stands, divorce is sanctioned on two grounds, desertion and infidelity. At the meeting of the General Assembly at Tulsa, Okla., in May 1928 it was proposed to make infidelity the only grounds of divorce in the Presbyterian church. It is claimed that desertion is so abused by parties to a divorce that it should no longer be a ground for legal separation.

As yet no definite attitude toward the question has been reached by the Appleton church.

ARRANGE PLANS FOR FREE THROW CONTEST

Hi-Y Club to Sponsor Event to Be Held During Spring Vacation

Plans are being arranged by members of the Hi-Y club of the Appleton high school and Y. M. C. A. for a free-throwing contest for boys in the Junior high schools above the seventh grade, according to C. C.
 Bailey, boys' work secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and club leader.

The contest will open at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon for youngsters of the McKinley school at the association gymnasium. At 1:30 Wednesday afternoon boys of the Wilson school will vie for honors, and at 1:30 Thursday afternoon the Roosevelt youngsters will toss for honors. Boys of the St. Joseph and other parochial schools will toss the ball at 1:30 Friday afternoon, according to Mr.
 Bailey.

The finals probably will be staged at 1:30 Saturday afternoon and it is expected a silver loving cup will be presented to the winning team. Each player is to be allotted 15 tosses, and the five highest scores from each school will constitute the school team, according to Mr. Bailey. Hi-Y club members will act as officials for the contest.

EXPECT NEW STRUGGLE IN BANK STOCK CASE

Fond du Lac (AP)—Return of Fond du Lac's check in settlement of state taxes, from which refunds made to the cities of Fond du Lac and Ripon had been deducted, by State Treasurer Solomon Levitan Friday was taken as an indication of the continuation of the long series of court proceedings that have marked the aftermath of the bank stock case, involving the levies of 1923 and 1924.

In refusing to accept the check, the state treasurer indicated that the state will not return illegal taxes to counties.

Following Mr. Levitan's action, District Attorney Gooding immediately forwarded to the Dane co. Circuit court papers in a mandamus proceeding to force the state treasurer to accept the check.

Berlin (AP)—Every sixth foreign-born who came to Berlin during 1923 was American. The German capital was visited in 1923 by 49,354 Americans, an increase of 13.5 per cent over 1927.

Books Of The Week
 By W. E. McPHEETERS
 Professor of English, Lawrence College

Latest Novel
 By Bennett Is Fair Reading

ACCIDENT, by Arnold Bennett.

Doubleday, Doran and Company.

Though Arnold Bennett is only sixty-two, he has produced an enormous number of books, mostly novels. Some like "The Old Wives Tale," "Clayhanger," and "Ricey-Step," have been masterpieces, discovers that his daughter-in-law, Pearl, is also on the express. She confesses that she is running away from her son, her husband, Jack, because he is about to try for Parliament on the Labor ticket. Frith-Walter, sharing her sense of outrage sympathizes with her. Jack, pursuing by airplane, joins the party in time to participate in a smash-up when the train leaves the rails. Despite this accident, everything turns out well.

Bennett's humor, philosophy of life and convincing characterization make this rather slender narrative worth reading.

NEW COUNTY BOARD
 TO MEET APRIL 8

Officers' Will Be Elected Road Commissioner Vacancy Discussed

The call for the April meeting of the county board has been signed by 21 supervisors and the board will gather at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, April 8 for the spring meeting. At that time the new supervisors, elected at the spring balloting, will take their seats. This is the organic meeting of the board and it will be necessary to elect a chairman and all committees. Mike Mack, Shiocton, is the present chairman.

Another matter which probably will be discussed by the board is the appointment of a highway commissioner. Although the board has no authority in the matter, the power of appointment being vested in the highway committee in case of a vacancy of the present kind, the highway committee has decided to withhold action until it gets the settlement of the board on the matter.

BUILD NEW RACK FOR FIRE ALARM BATTERIES

Construction of new racks to hold the batteries which operate the city fire alarm system was completed this week by Louis Luecke, department electrician. The racks are constructed of oak, finished and polished. They are located in the battery room on the second floor of the fire department.

A feature of the new racks is the installation of three armor fuses which prevent the burning out of all batteries when a short circuit occurs somewhere on the system. Previously a short circuit would burn out all the batteries. Especially during electrical storms trouble was encountered. Under the new system, however, the fuses will be burned out but the batteries will not be damaged, according to Mr. Luecke.

Mexico And Its Heritage
 Is Detailed

MEXICO AND ITS HERITAGE, by Ernest Gruening. The Century Company.

Ernest Gruening, well-known journalist, at one time managing editor of the New York "Tribune," later also of the New York "Nation," and in 1924, director of publicity of the LaFollette Progressive presidential campaign, has in his "Mexico and Its Heritage" made an elaborate study of Mexico, its history and its present conditions. His book, which contains nearly seven hundred pages, is carefully documented.

Much of the material in this volume was gathered by Mr. Gruening during investigations in Mexico for Collier's and others in 1922, 1925, 1926, and 1927, his sojourn amounting to eighteen months in all. During this time he visited 24 out of the 32 states.

The facts which he has gathered regarding the revolution, land, the church, labor, education and so on, he has presented clearly, with apparent accuracy, and in great detail. The factual nature of his study is its most important claim to merit.
 He himself disclaims any desire to use the interpretative approach except when unavoidable, and says he has no thesis to sustain. "I would,"
 he states, "present Mexico as objectively as may be, and leave each reader to form his own conclusions."

This little book (it has only a few over two hundred pages) is divided into four parts: Part I "On Thinking"; Part II "Obstacles to Thought"; Part III "Helps to Thought"; Part IV "Creative Thought." Some of the sub-topics are: "How to estimate thought,"
 "Real Thinking," "Obsessions or Inferiority Complexes," "Living one's life on a higher plane," "How we get at our own ideas," "Find yourself," and so on.

This is the kind of a book the reader can dip into at almost any point and draw forth a few stimulating ideas. It is the kind of a book that one can read a bit at a time, for it is broken up into rather brief segments that vary in length, and themselves without reference to what may precede or follow them.

In discussing "How to Estimate Thought" the author gives the following very interesting little criticism of Americans as he has observed them when he has visited this country. He suggests that we do not use our minds in an independent way. "Copy-cats, humble slaves imitating their masters' Americanization, the transforming of foreign dissimilarity into American conformity, is not done, so Americanizing centers imagine, by the substitution of a new set of ideas for another. The thing is done more simply. Long before the new arrival begins to know the language which he calls the American and even before changing his name from Silvio into Sullivan, he is trying to be as American as his simple resources will let him."

The new American, he continues,
 "shaves off his moustache and has his hair cut in the most military style. He goes to games and quickly learns to yell. Soon he begins to suppress the native vivacity on his face and replaces it by good-natured slowness. Nine times out of ten you will see him copy the hesitancy before speaking accompanied by a mute motion of the lips which is frequent in Americans of his class.
 He has no difficulty in adopting the salute with the hand which possibly America has borrowed from his Roman ancestors. He has been told, before leaving Naples, that a good American consists largely of good clothes and his first money goes to that."

In discussing what he calls "Interior Solitude," or concentration, he cites the famous instance of Napoleon who could "pass from one subject to another completely different, from strategy for instance, to the Charter of the Comedie-Francaise, as if he had been another man. He had in his mind what he called sometimes drawers, sometimes attases, providing him with the matter he required."

Under "Reflection" he says that this is "what people generally call thinking. When a person is neither speaking, writing, getting rid of some job, nor being spoken to, if he is also not asleep, he is supposed to be thinking. Reflecting is something more active." Madame de Maintenon defined reflection as "thinking attentively of the same thing several times over." This, he thinks, is a very good definition.

While this little book, despite its formidable title, is no more profound than Arnold Bennett's famous "How to Live on Twenty-four Hours a Day," the fact that it is a best-seller speaks well for the interest of the American public in the art of thinking.

 the Fondy team at Oshkosh next

Best Fishing Not Always Found In Far-Off Lakes

BY E. A. CLAPLIN

A tendency of most of us to seek for the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow. But when we get there, there is no pot of gold awaiting us,
 and even the rainbow has disappeared. In other words we are not satisfied with the less brilliant, perhaps, but surely more substantial, offerings of our backyards, figuratively speaking.

Sport seeking anglers are prone to gamble on what lies over the hills, back of the beyond. They will travel hundreds of miles away up into Canada, hoping beyond hope to land a record breaking musky or trout; and most of them return humbled and wiser, to read of the prize-winning fish taken in Wisconsin, right in their "back yards."

A good illustration of this was the case of a man living in Milwaukee.
 He wrote me last season asking that I furnish him definite information on Canadian fishing. He had set his mind on such a trip and nothing else would do, and wouldn't I, therefore, please give him some advice on, and directions on how to get to, the Lake of the Woods region, what equipment, tackle and otherwise, and what clothing and so on."

I knew from his letter that it would be useless to suggest that he might not find the pot of gold, even if he did find the rainbow, and so I gave him the information asked for.
 I laid out the course for him and he followed it, writing me in reference to it upon his return home.

Following the rough map I penciled for him, he drove to Italy River. From here he went by boat farther on. In writing me he stated that my directions were explicit and correct but that he realized what a mistake he had made in not asking my advice as to making the trip.

He stated in his letter that the boat that carried his party to camp was not seaworthy; and that their experience in the open water was

A letter which had just returned from a trip to the town of Appleton in the United States was one of the features of the meeting of the Appleton Philatelic society at Conway hotel Thursday evening. The envelope showed the cancellations of nine of these cities, and had travelled 6,500 miles via first class mail in 22 days.

Another interesting exhibit was one of the new Roger Clark Memorial stamps owned by M. F. Hatch which showed an engraver's flaw.
 This flaw occurs in only one of every 400 stamps.

Another section of the collection of W. O. Thiede was viewed by the club members. The aggregation consisted mainly of hundreds of stamps of the British colonies, all of exceptional value of the world up to the present time, and one album of old foreign stamps.

A full sheet of two cent stamps which contained two of the famous five cent red errors which Uncle Sam made in 1916 was offered for sale at auction by William H. Zuehlke and bought by W. O. Thiede for the sum of $10.00.

Clarence A. Loeschner of Menasha and E. A. Boettcher of Appleton were enrolled as members of the club.

Noted Actor Selects Two Scenes from "Hamlet" for Engagement

The appearance of E. H. Sothern, noted Shakespearean actor, on April 8 at Lawrence Memorial chapel, is an event of unique importance since his position in the American theatre is unrivaled. For 40 years he has been a dominating figure of the stage and during 20 of these years he co-starred with Julia Marlowe. He is being sought here by the auspicious Lawrence college.

For his Appleton engagement Mr.
 Sothern has chosen two scenes from "Hamlet," that between Hamlet and Ophelia, and the closet scene between Hamlet and Queen Gertrude. Sothern's first appearance as Hamlet was a daring venture since he was regarded as the leading romantic comedian of his time. So great was his success in this role that four years later with Julia Marlowe he became the greatest dramatic organization in the American theatre.

Another feature of his program will be the scene between Othello and Iago in the play "Othello."
 This production, although arranged for, never was played on the stage.
 He will also relate the story of "Our American Cousin," a comedy made famous by his father, and recite some of the amusing scenes from it.

"My Thirty Years at Sea"

by CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

Fried says he would far rather stand on the bridge of the America and face a stinging nor-wester than be confronted by an admiring throng waiting for him to make a speech. He declares he does not feel like a hero; does not in fact know how a hero should feel.
 He got a big thrill out of a visit to Worcester, Mass., his home town, however, while the New York and other receptions left him dazed.

BY CAPT. GEORGE FRIED
 (Copyright 1929, Associated Press)
 Chapter XXIII

Twice I have been the central figure in rather spectacular sea rescues and twice I have been honored and feted by thousands of my fellow citizens in various parts of the country.
 But I can assure you that it is far easier standing on the bridge of my America facing a stinging nor-wester than to be confronted by an admiring throng waiting for me to make a speech. A sailor is at home on a ship but not in a hall or auditorium or behind the banquet table. Sailors may be noted for spinning yarns but not at banquets.

After the Antineer rescue this hero-business was all new and strange. I felt it was all a dream. It was an amazing and bewildering experience and never once did I know what to expect next. I weathered the first so after the second I felt resigned to whatever might come.

As great, if not greater, was my last greeting in New York City and later I visited Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, Providence, Chicago, Cincinnati, Culver, Ind., and my home town, Worcester, Mass. In each city I was given tremendous welcomes and extended such unusual courtesies that each experience will always be indelibly carved in my memory, but with it all I have one regret—that I did not have with me my chief officer, Mr. Manning, and his splendid crew.

Like a general commanding an army or an admiral directing a squadron of ships, the captain of a morphine vessel receives credit for something done by his officers and men.
 But there are others whose work cannot be overlooked. First of all there is the personal heroism of each individual in the boat crew who endangers his life by venturing in an open boat on a high sea. Then there are the men who double up to maintain the steam pressure in the boilers and the alert engine crew that responds instantly to orders from the bridge. The loss of a moment in executing an order by these men might mean disaster and yet they can be nothing from their positions in the hold of the ship. The credit for effecting a safe rescue be-belongs to every man in the crew, but in the case of failure, the blame is placed upon the shoulders of the captain.

I do not particularly feel like a hero. The fact is I do not know how a hero should feel, yet there is a certain amount of satisfaction and pride in knowing that with the fine Guidance I was successful in finding disabled ships and getting their human cargo aboard my vessels. But after all, it was in the line of duty

Famous Christians

The power of the Church was great in the days of Pope Innocent III. Innocent forced King Philip Augustus of France to quit a life of sin. King Leon of Spain was treated in like manner. England was placed under an interdict and King John's crown threatened had he not made submission.

One of Innocent's greatest deeds was appointment of Stephen Langton as Archbishop of Canterbury.

Stephen feared neither pope nor king, but stood up manfully for justice and right as it appeared to him.

Langton was to play a great part in world history. Though Innocent himself bade Langton desist, the archbishop played a large part in uniting the barons to demand from the king the Magna Charta, or Great Charter, the first great document of democracy.

STRONG WIND IS FEARED IN FLOOD FIGHT

Commissioner Huffcutt Believes Highway 54 to Northport Is Safe

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — Fear of strong wind from the northeast presents the greatest difficulty in the fight being waged against the waters of the Wolf on highway 54, between this city and Northport. This was the assertion of John Huffcutt, Waupaca highway commissioner on Friday night. Rain of steady duration would, of course, increase the gravity of the situation, but with the river having begun to recede Mr. Huffcutt believes the road safe for the time being. A day and night crew have been at work constantly and much sand was hauled on Friday, with heaps being dumped at intervals to use in emergency. The road is still passable, though greatly narrowed at points and deep holes are developing where seepage beneath the roadbed is disintegrating filling.

Mr. Huffcutt believes that probably $500 will have to be spent in order to reconstruct the road when the water finally recedes. If the flood succeeds in washing away this road it is possible that the Wisconsin State Highway commission will again consider proposed road which do away with the south river road. If the new plan materialized, operations would be started on an entirely new road which would cut into highway 54 at the top of Northport hill, lead directly across the swamp toward this city, joining 26 some where near the Green Bay and Western railroad. This plan was proposed fully twelve years ago, but has been opposed by citizens of this city and of the county in general. The reason for opposition was based on the belief that in the long run, with the road bed which already exists it would be of more benefit to have the present stretch. The scenic beauties of the river drive also were argued.

WATER SHOWS DROP

Conditions in the flooded area immediately within the city limits remain only slightly changed. Water from the Embarrass still flowed in on Shawano-st although the level is lower throughout the two wards and with favorable weather conditions streets should begin to clear during the next few days. Low places present problems and even when streets are clear water will remain a sanitary problem to the city. Water is being pumped out of basements. The Grand theatre is closed and there will be no services on Sunday at St. John's Episcopal church because of the flooded condition of the street.

Shipping difficulties are encountered on all the side tracks of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad which run into the north side. The tracks leading to the Rice Coal company near the Wadham's oil station are under water, as well as those leading to the Hutton Lumber company. Borden's, the Edison Wood Products company, American Plywood company and La Marche Products company are receiving and shipping consignments although some water is encountered, the roadbed is not endangered. The Green Bay and Western railroad is operating as usual, there being no water standing on tracks. Hamilton and Sons Canning company has resumed work in those departments which are on the second floor of the factory.

FIRST PICTURE OF MINE EXPLOSION

With a roar that could be heard for miles, a sheet of flame shot upward 200 feet into the air from the mouth of the ill-fated Kinkaid mine near Watrous, Pa., when nearly 300 miners were trapped by an explosion there. The picture above shows the burning tipple ignited by the blast. Below are families of entombed miners as they watched and waited behind guard ropes while rescue crews sought to penetrate the depths.
